William Preston, Edward S. Herman, Herbert I. Schiller, 1989-01-01 Created in a burst of idealism after World War II the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization UNESCO existed for forty years in a state of troubled yet often successful collaboration with one of its founders and benefactors the United States In 1980 UNESCO adopted the report of a commission that surveyed and criticized the dominance in world media of the United States Japan and a handful of European countries The report also provided the conceptual underpinnings for what was later called the New World Information and Communication Order a general direction adopted by UNESCO to encourage increased Third World participation in world media This direction it never became an official program ultimately led to the United States s withdrawal from UNESCO in 1984 Hope and Folly is an interpretive chronicle of U S UNESCO relations Although the information debated has garnered wide attention in Europe and the Third World there is no comparable study in the English language and none that focuses specifically on the United States and the broad historical context of the debate In the first three parts William Preston covers the changing U S UNESCO relationship from the early cold war years through the period of anti UNESCO backlash as well as the politics of the withdrawal Edward Herman s section is an interpretive critique of American media coverage of the withdrawal and Herbert Schiller s is a conceptual analysis of conflicts within the United States s information policies during its last years in UNESCO The book s appendices include an analysis of Ed Bradley s notorious 60 Minutes broadcast on UNESCO Selling Hope and College Alex Posecznick,2017-04-25 It has long been assumed that college admission should be a simple matter of sorting students according to merit with the best heading off to the Ivy League and highly ranked liberal arts colleges and the rest falling naturally into their rightful places Admission to selective institutions where extremely fine distinctions are made is characterized by heated public debates about whether standardized exams high school transcripts essays recommendation letters or interviews best indicate which prospective students are worthy And then there is college for everyone else But what goes into less selective college admissions in an era when everyone feels compelled to go regardless of preparation or life goals Ravenwood College where Alex Posecznick spent a year doing ethnographic research was a small private nonprofit institution dedicated to social justice and serving traditionally underprepared students from underrepresented minority groups To survive in the higher education marketplace the college had to operate like a business and negotiate complex categories of merit while painting a hopeful picture of the future for its applicants Selling Hope and College is a snapshot of a particular type of institution as it goes about the business of producing itself and justifying its place in the market Admissions staff members were burdened by low enrollments and worked tirelessly to fill empty seats even as they held on to the institution s special spirit Posecznick documents what it takes to keep a mediocre institution open and running and the struggles tensions and battles that members of the community tangle with daily as they carefully walk the line between empowering marginalized students and exploiting them
