

Moon Note-Taking Guide

Why do we see the same face of the moon?

Although the moon rotates around its axis at the same rate that it orbits Earth, we always see the same side of the moon. This is because the moon is tidally locked to Earth. As the moon orbits Earth, it rotates at the same rate so that the same side of the moon always faces Earth. This is called synchronous rotation.

The moon's rotation period is 27.3 days, which is the same as its orbital period. This is why we always see the same side of the moon. The moon's rotation is synchronized with its orbit around Earth. This is a result of tidal forces between the Earth and the moon. Over time, these forces have slowed the moon's rotation until it matched its orbital period.

Why don't we see a different side of the moon? The answer is that the moon's rotation is locked to its orbit. This is a result of tidal forces between the Earth and the moon. Over time, these forces have slowed the moon's rotation until it matched its orbital period. This is why we always see the same side of the moon.

The Moon

The moon is the only natural satellite of Earth. It is a rocky body that orbits the Earth. The moon is about 1/4 the size of Earth and is the only celestial body in the solar system that we can see with the naked eye. The moon's surface is covered in craters, mountains, and valleys. The moon's atmosphere is very thin and is composed of oxygen, nitrogen, and carbon dioxide. The moon's temperature ranges from -173°C to 127°C. The moon's gravity is about 1/6 that of Earth's. The moon's rotation is synchronized with its orbit around Earth. This is why we always see the same side of the moon.
