Life expectancy is the average number of years a person is expected to live. It is calculated by dividing the number of years lived by the number of people who have died.

Change rate is the rate at which a population is changing. It is calculated by dividing the change in population by the change in time. For example, if a population of 1000 people grows to 1200 people in 20 years, the change rate is 10 people per year.

Carrying capacity is the maximum number of individuals that an environment can support. It is determined by the availability of resources such as food, water, and space.
