Internal air is forced by the CR crank pin offset, it compresses the air in the cylinder in a quasi-isobaric fashion (see Figure 1, 10) to the top. The piston, continually driven is connected to a valve with the pump (see section) when the force are raised to that upper level. An actuator valve on the cylinder plate actuates the valve. This causes the piston and it compresses the air released which is sent outwards power from the CR system.

Abstract

A forward control system is used in the motor. The system electronically controls the motor power and can be configured for CPM or for CPM with speed steps as described. The heart of the control system is the motor controller.

The wave-structure is basically a high-power semiconductor switch. An array of power transistors are connected in parallel and control the current in the output inductors.
