Franklin,Ray Block Jr.,2020-01-15 Tennessee has made tremendous strides in race relations since the end of de jure segregation African Americans are routinely elected and appointed to state and local offices the black vote has tremendous sway in statewide elections and legally explicit forms of racial segregation have been outlawed Yet the idea of transforming Tennessee into a racially equitable state a notion that was central to the black freedom movement during the antebellum and Jim Crow periods remains elusive for many African Americans in Tennessee especially those living in the most underresourced and economically distressed communities Losing Power investigates the complex relationship between racial polarization black political influence and multiracial coalitions in Tennessee in the first decade of the twenty first century Sekou M Franklin and Ray Block examine the divide in values preferences and voting behaviors between blacks and whites contending that this racial divide is both one of the causes and one of the consequences of black Tennesseans recent loss of political power Tennessee has historically been considered more politically moderate and less racially conservative than the states of the Deep South Yet in recent years and particularly since the mid 2000s Republicans have cemented their influence in the state While Franklin and Block s analysis and methodology focus on state elections political institutions and public policy Franklin and Block have also developed a conceptual framework for racial politics that goes beyond voting patterns to include elite level discourse issue framing intrastate geographical divisions social movements and pressure from interest groups

Way Down in the Hole Angela J. Hattery, Earl Smith, 2022-10-14 Based on ethnographic observations and interviews with prisoners correctional officers and civilian staff conducted in solitary confinement units Way Down in the Hole explores the myriad ways in which daily intimate interactions between those locked up twenty four hours a day and the correctional officers charged with their care custody and control produce and reproduce hegemonic racial ideologies Smith and Hattery explore the outcome of building prisons in rural economically depressed communities staffing them with white people who live in and around these communities filling them with Black and brown bodies from urban areas and then designing the structure of solitary confinement units such that the most private intimate daily bodily functions take place in very public ways Under these conditions it shouldn't be surprising but is rarely considered that such daily interactions produce and reproduce white racial resentment among many correctional officers and fuel the racialized tensions that prisoners often describe as the worst forms of dehumanization Way Down in the Hole concludes with recommendations for reducing the use of solitary confinement reforming its use in a limited context and most importantly creating an environment in which prisoners and staff co exist in ways that recognize their individual humanity and reduce rather than reproduce racial antagonisms and racial resentment Way Down the Hole Video 1 <https://youtu.be/UuAB63fhge0> Way Down the Hole Video 2 <https://youtu.be/TwEuw1cTrcQ> Way Down the Hole Video 3 https://youtu.be/bOcBv_UnHIs Way Down the Hole Video 4 https://youtu.be/cx_1lS8D77c
