- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or other light sources. To avoid this, there are two things the producer should do:
 - 1. Turn off the lights at the end of the day.
 - 2. Avoid excessive light intensity, the length of the day and the light spectrum (the color of the light) are important.
- The end of the day is the best time to change the light spectrum. The producer should be looking for the color of the light to be blue-white for the first 12 hours of the day, then gradually change to red, orange, and yellow. The last 12 hours should be red.
- The light spectrum is important because the fish need it to regulate their circadian rhythm. The fish need the light to regulate their internal clock.

When you install your T-Value One Connection, improper installation of all four screws (50 combinations for One Connection) will void the warranty. Please, before installing, refer to the correct installation instructions. Failure to maintain proper ventilation may result in a variety of problems with the product.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. For example, if the price of the output rises, the producer will increase its output level until the marginal revenue is equal to the marginal cost.
