Mobile Communications A. Jagoda, M. de Villepin, 2013-11-11 1 1 COMMUNICATION WHILE TRAVELLING The pace of our daily life has been increasing for several decades Our needs have multiplied as new products have appeared and then been replaced after a few years or even months of existence by a more fashionable product or one of higher performance The life cycles of the technologies used in consumer and professional electronic products are also becoming shorter This acceleration is an inherent fact of our consumer society and the relationship between people and machines are Lifestyles due to the multiplicity of ephemeral consumer products Objects changing no longer have a history they are merely tools which fulfil a predetermined function Personal portable products are of a new type which has appeared among pens wallets these impersonal objects This category includes watches handbags calculators portable radios and pocket telephones As these products for the pocket are carried on one s person they belong in a very personal way and have therefore a specific identity corresponding to the image which they are given In the evolution of lifestyles the explosive increase of travel and time management are major factors The pocket telephone is therefore remarkable for two reasons It is not only an impersonal tool or product but is also very much a personal portable product The possibility of distant communication while travelling being able to call or be called at will anywhere at any time permits the pocket telephone to be often considered as a desirable almost magic personal item

Socio-technical Design of Ubiquitous Computing Systems Klaus David, Kurt Geihs, Jan Marco Leimeister, Alexander Roßnagel, Ludger Schmidt, Gerd Stumme, Arno Wacker, 2014-07-28 By using various data inputs ubiquitous computing systems detect their current usage context automatically adapt their services to the user s situational needs and interact with other services or resources in their environment on an ad hoc basis Designing such self adaptive context aware knowledge processing systems is in itself a formidable challenge This book presents core findings from the VENUS project at the Interdisciplinary Research Center for Information System Design ITeG at Kassel University where researchers from different fields such as computer science information systems human computer interaction and law together seek to find general principles and guidelines for the design of socially aware ubiquitous computing systems To this end system usability user trust in the technology and adherence to privacy laws and regulations were treated as particularly important criteria in the context of socio technical system design During the project a comprehensive blueprint for systematic interdisciplinary software development was developed covering the particular functional and non functional design aspects of ubiquitous computing at the interface between technology and human beings The organization of the book reflects the structure of the VENUS work program After an introductory part I part II provides the groundwork for VENUS by presenting foundational results from all four disciplines involved Subsequently part III focuses on methodological research funneling the development activities into a common framework Part IV then covers the design of the demonstrators that were built in order to develop and evaluate the VENUS method Finally part V is dedicated to the evaluation phase to assess the user acceptance of the new approach and applications The presented findings are especially important for researchers in computer science information systems and human computer interaction but also for everyone working on the acceptance of new technologies in society in general
