Hunter,2012-06-25 Crop wild relatives CWR are plant species which are more or less closely related to crops They are a vital resource by providing a pool of genetic variation that can be used in breeding new and better adapted varieties of crops that are resistant to stress disease drought and other factors They will be increasingly important in allowing crops to adapt to the impacts of climate thus safeguarding future agricultural production Until recently the main conservation strategy adopted for CWR has been ex situ through the maintenance of samples as seed or vegetative material in various kinds of genebank or other facilities Now the need to conserve CWR in their natural surroundings in situ is increasingly recognized Recent research co ordinated by Bioversity International has produced a wealth of information on good practices and lessons learned for their effective conservation This book captures the important practical experiences of countries participating in this work and describes them for the wider conservation community It includes case studies and examples from Armenia Bolivia Madagascar Sri Lanka and Uzbekistan which are important centres of diversity for crop wild relatives and covers four geographical regions the Caucasus South America Africa and the Asia Pacific Region It provides practical relevant information and guidance for the scaling up of actions targeting CWR conservation around the world Medical and Veterinary Entomology Gary R.
