The Course Reflection Project Nicole Schonemann, Emily Metzgar, Andrew Libby, 2015-05-01 Service learning is entering a post initiatory phase At tertiary institutions of all types and sizes service learning programs are common and service learning requirements for graduation are growing in popularity Taken together alongside continued faculty interest in effective teaching these factors have raised the visibility and popularity of service learning Now the greater need in service learning is not to prove the need for or efficacy of service learning but to turn the focus squarely back on practice Following established best practice is not enough instructors also need to reflect on how this fits within the specific context and application of each unique course and service learning partnership While there are many excellent resources that detail best practice and showcase exemplary service learning courses faculty reflection and course revision often goes unmentioned In response to the lack of attention on the role of reflection and course revision we convened groups of faculty from a variety of disciplines to reflect deeply on their courses paying specific attention to obstacles and challenges These conversations were converted to articles for this edited collection each chapter representing the process of reflection and revision and serving as a guide to develop effective practice in varied curricular contexts This text contributes to the body of literature on service learning in a unique and practical manner Faculty teaching or interested in teaching service learning classes would benefit from this text as well as university administrators and community service directors involved in service learning at a programmatic and institutional level This book should be marketed to faculty teaching disciplinary service learning classes and service learning pedagogy classes and administrative offices involved in service learning This could be a supplementary text for graduate level pedagogy courses Higher education institutional libraries would benefit from this text as well as the national and state campus compact offices

Teaching Social Justice Brandi Lawless, Yea-Wen Chen, 2021-08-15 The intercultural communication classroom can be an emotionally and intellectually heavy place for many students and teachers Sensitive topics arise and students must face complex issues with intellectual curiosity and collegial respect To navigate the precarious waters of intercultural communications teachers need an intentional approach to foster meaningful discussion and learning This pedagogical guide presents conceptual overviews student activities and problem solving strategies for teaching intercultural communication The authors navigate eight categories of potential conflict including communicating power and privilege community engagement in social justice and assessing intercultural pedagogies for social justice In addition to empirical studies and the authors own classroom experiences the book features the personal narratives of junior and senior intercultural communication teacher scholars whose journeys will encourage and instruct readers towards more fulfilling teaching experiences
