Answer the following questions:

- 1.1 Describe the hydrologic cycle, components, and processes. (10%)
The hydrologic cycle is a continuous process that moves water around the globe. It is driven by the sun, which heats the water and causes it to evaporate. The water vapor then rises and cools, forming clouds. When the clouds become saturated, precipitation falls as rain or snow. The water then flows into rivers, lakes, and oceans, or it infiltrates the ground and becomes groundwater. The water eventually returns to the ocean, where it can be evaporated again and the cycle repeats.
- 1.2 Describe erosion, and the following erosion processes: weathering, mass wasting, and sedimentation. (10%)
Erosion is the process of wearing away the Earth's surface. It is caused by the action of water, wind, and ice. Weathering is the process of breaking down rocks into smaller pieces. Mass wasting is the process of rocks and soil falling down a slope. Sedimentation is the process of particles settling out of a fluid.
- 1.3 Describe drainage basins and divides. What is the significance of the continental divide? (10%)
A drainage basin is the area of land that drains water into a single body of water. A divide is a ridge or high ground that separates two drainage basins. The continental divide is a major divide that runs across North America, separating the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans.
- 1.4 Describe drainage patterns, characteristics, and differences between different types of drainage patterns. (10%)
Drainage patterns are the ways in which water flows over the land. There are several different types of drainage patterns, including dendritic, trellis, and rectangular. Each type has its own characteristics and is caused by different geological factors.
- 1.5 Describe how erosion, sedimentation, and deposition are affected by wind, water, and ice. (10%)

- 1.6 Describe glacial erosion. How does glacial erosion differ from other types of erosion? (10%)
Glacial erosion is the process of wearing away the Earth's surface by the action of glaciers. It is different from other types of erosion because it is caused by the weight of the ice and the friction between the ice and the ground.
