Answer every question in a complete sentence and highlight 3 key concepts in blue

1) How Method?

1. What methodological problems could be expected if you did observational research without using participant observation?
There would be observer effects, the subjects would be aware of the presence of the observer and would act differently than they would in a natural setting.
2. Research involving the direct study of social action without the use of participant observation is called what?
It is called participant observation.
3. What are the advantages of using participant observation over observational research without participant observation?
Participant observation allows researchers to see the social action from the inside, to see the social action as it is actually experienced by the participants. It also allows researchers to see the social action in its natural context, rather than in a laboratory setting.
4. What are the disadvantages of using participant observation?
Participant observation is a very time-consuming method. It also requires a high degree of skill and training. It is also a very subjective method, and researchers must be careful to avoid bias.
5. What is the difference between participant observation and non-participant observation?
Participant observation involves the researcher taking part in the social action being studied. Non-participant observation involves the researcher observing the social action without taking part in it.
6. What are the advantages of using participant observation over non-participant observation?
Participant observation allows researchers to see the social action from the inside, to see the social action as it is actually experienced by the participants. It also allows researchers to see the social action in its natural context, rather than in a laboratory setting.
