A simple empirical model of activity and crud transport in the candu hts has been developed and its utility illustrated using station data the model emphasizes the fundamental role played by the out of core deposits the input parameters required by the model can be obtained from data from station artefact characterizations radiation field measurements and oxi probe measurements and single tube decontaminations the details of the model are illustrated using the simple example of 95zr transport which is transported mainly as particles the more challenging case of 60co transport is then used to highlight additional aspects of the model and to point out some of the areas where further work is required the model provides insights into the effectiveness of the candu purification system it has allowed order of magnitude estimates to be made of the effective deposition half lives for radionuclide removal by the hts deposits in particular  $t_{1/2}$  95zr 10 98 h  $t_{1/2}$  60co 7 62 min typical candu purification half lives range from 50 minutes to several hours this is short enough to compete effectively with hts surfaces for 95zr removal at the highest flow rates the one hour half life is short enough to have a measurable impact on 60co deposition at longer purification half lives the impact on 60co deposition is likely small it should be noted that 95zr is transported and deposited mainly as particles while 60co is deposited mainly as a dissolved species further work is required to determine if these half lives can be generalized to all particulate and dissolved species the model leads to an estimate for the efficiency of the main hts system for the removal of the different radionuclides from the circulating coolant for 60co this removal efficiency is in the range 0.28 to 2.5% in most discussions of the purification system effectiveness an implicit assumption has been that the hts deposits were highly efficient in removing dissolved species from the coolant these values illustrate the error of that assumption while the purification system receives only a very small flow compared to the steam generators on the order of 0.1% it is highly efficient 95-100% the main hts loop receives 99.9% of the flow but is inefficient on the order of 1% the net result is that the two removal mechanisms are more closely matched than previously assumed the pseudo efficiency provides a link between this model and more mechanistic treatments of activity deposition the hts deposit full flow purification system can be broken into components outlet feeders steam generators inlet feeders the utility of this sub division has been demonstrated by calculating the effect of removing the steam generator deposits by decontamination on reactor face fields in the year immediately following the decontamination the predicted factor of 3.0 increase in 60co deposition at the reactor face compares favourably with the increase observed at gentilly 2 after the siva blast of a factor of 2.8 refinements to the model should enable the pseudo efficiencies to be linked to hts parameters such as the iron deposition profile information on the affinity of radionuclides for magnetite and for the outlet end fittings feeders and hot leg of the steam generator tubes where the deposits are much thinner plus various geometric considerations surface areas diameters fluid velocities via more mechanistic models some deficiencies in the existing station data were identified during the application of the model to 95zr and 60co a series of measurements is recommended to obtain the data required to assess the model in particular develop a good set of deposition constants for all radionuclides of interest especially 60co 124sb and 95zr 95nb including the contributions of dissolved and particulate species develop a good set of purification system removal constants for all radionuclides of interest including the contributions from dissolved and particulate species determine c the coolant concentration for all species of interest including dissolved and particulate species
