

Heart: Internal Structure

The heart is a muscular organ that pumps blood throughout the body. It is located in the chest cavity, between the lungs. The heart is divided into four chambers: the right atrium, right ventricle, left atrium, and left ventricle. The right side of the heart pumps deoxygenated blood to the lungs, and the left side pumps oxygenated blood to the rest of the body.

The heart is made up of muscle tissue, which is responsible for contracting and relaxing to pump blood. The heart is also surrounded by a double-walled sac called the pericardium, which contains a fluid that lubricates the heart and allows it to move freely. The heart is connected to the rest of the body by a network of blood vessels called the circulatory system.

The heart is a complex organ that plays a vital role in the body's overall health. It is responsible for ensuring that all the cells in the body receive the oxygen and nutrients they need to survive. Any damage to the heart can have serious consequences for the body's health.
