Krusty Krabs Breath Mints

Mr. Krabs created a secret ingredient for a breath mint that he thinks will “cure” the bad breath people get from eating crabby patties at the Krusty Krab. He asked 100 customers with a history of bad breath to try his new breath mint. He had 50 customers (Group A) eat a breath mint after they finished eating a crabby patty. The other 50 customers (Group B) also received a breath mint after they finished the sandwich, however, it was just a regular breath mint and did not have the secret ingredient. Both groups were told that they were getting the breath mint that would cure their bad breath. Two hours after eating the crabby patties, 30 customers in Group A and 10 customers in Group B reported having better breath than they normally had after eating crabby patties.

1. Which group of people were in the control group? Group without the secret ingredient, group B
2. What is the independent variable? The secret ingredient
3. What is the dependent variable? Fresh breath
4. What do you think Mr. Krabs' conclusion should be? The secret ingredient helps people to have fresh breath
5. Give examples/details that support why you think in #4 what Mr. Krabs' conclusion should be. 30 out 50 people from group A had fresh breath but only 10 out 50 people from group B did

Scientific American: Presenting Psychology Deborah Licht, Misty Hull, Coco Ballantyne, 2016-01-11 Presenting Psychology is a fresh concise variation of the breakout bestseller Scientific American Psychology combining the communicative style of the world's most respected science magazine with thoughtful immersive learning to help you reach all kinds of students. Science Education Katerina Plakitsi, 2013-09-04 The purpose of this book is to establish a broader context for rethinking science learning and teaching by using cultural historical activity theoretic approach. Activity theory already steps in its third generation and only a few works have been done on its applications to science education, especially in Europe. The context takes into account more recent developments in activity theory applications in US, Canada, Australia, and Europe. The chapters articulate new ways of thinking about learning and teaching science, i.e., new theoretical perspectives and some case studies of teaching important scientific topics in compulsory education. The ultimate purpose of each chapter and the collective book as a whole is to prepare the ground upon which a new pedagogy in science education can be emerged to provide more encompassing theoretical frameworks that allow us to capture the complexity of science learning and teaching as it occurs in and out of schools. The book captures the dialogic and interactive nature of transferring the activity theory to both formal and informal science education. It also contributes to the development of innovative curricula, school science textbooks, educational programs, and ICT materials. As a whole, the book moves theorizing and practicing of science education into new face and uncharted terrain. It is recommended to new scholars and researchers as well as teachers/researchers. Loose-leaf
