

Danielson Framework for Teaching (2022) Rubrics by Washington State

Criterion 1: Centering instruction on high expectations for student achievement.
2b: Fostering a Culture for Learning
Unsatisfactory – 1	Basic – 2	Proficient – 3	Distinguished – 4
The culture of the class is not conducive to learning and does not support development.	The culture of the class is partially conducive to learning and development.	The culture of the class is characterized by high expectations and supports students' learning and development.	Students play an active role in establishing a culture that consistently fosters dialogue, reflection, and growth, allowing all students to experience success.
Critical Attributes: Purpose and Motivation
There is little or no sense of purpose for the work or the reasons for doing it are external demands.	The teacher communicates the importance of content, the ultimate purpose of learning, and the value of personal growth with some success.	The teacher and students demonstrate a belief in the importance of learning and personal growth that motivates them to succeed and flourish.	The teacher and students display dedication to learning the content and a sense of purpose for their learning; both content mastery and personal growth are valued by the teacher and students.
Critical Attributes: Dispositions for Learning
Student curiosity is ignored or discouraged; students are not asked to think critically or to reason and reflect.	Student curiosity, critical thinking, reasoning, and reflection are occasionally encouraged.	Curiosity, critical thinking, reasoning, and reflection are encouraged and intentionally developed.	Student curiosity, critical thinking, reasoning, and reflection are clearly evident in the classroom and have a direct impact on instruction, student learning, and development.
Critical Attributes: Student Agency and Pride in Work
Students have little or no agency in learning experiences or classroom life.	Students are given some opportunities to exercise agency, that they may not be taken up or maybe infrequent.	Students have multiple opportunities to exercise agency, and autonomy is intentionally developed and celebrated.	Students clearly exercise autonomy in their learning and actively suggest ways to make the classroom more joyful, rigorous, and purposeful.
Critical Attributes: Support and Perseverance
The teacher conveys that the work is too challenging for all or some of the students or that they lack the perseverance to succeed; students are allowed or expected to quit.	Confidence, resilience, persistence, and teamwork are encouraged, promoting a conviction that with hard work and perseverance all students can master the content.	Confidence, resilience, persistence, and teamwork that support student perseverance are intentionally developed and celebrated.	Students encourage one another to persevere and use strategies to support each other through challenging work.
