Kuwait Iran Israel and other nations in the region and how it can and must address the needs of local residents As oil rich countries in the Middle East are increasingly associated with soaring skyscrapers and modern architecture attention is being diverted away from the pervasive struggles of social housing in those same urban settings Social Housing in the Middle East traces the history of social housing both gleaming postmodern projects and bare bones urban housing structures in an effort to provide a wider understanding of marginalized spaces and their impact on identities communities and class While architects may have envisioned utopian or futuristic experiments these buildings were often constructed with the knowledge and skill sets of local workers and the housing was in turn adapted to suit the modern needs of residents This tension between local needs and national aspirations are linked to issues of global importance including security migration and refugee resettlement The essays collected here consider how culture faith and politics influenced the solutions offered by social housing they provide an insightful look at how social housing has evolved since the nineteenth century and how it will need to adapt to suit the twenty first Essential reading for architectural and social historians planners and policy makers CAA Reviews
