Cheng et al. found that the 1000-year return period peak annual flood for the Yangtze River is 10.5% greater than the 100-year return period peak annual flood. This is due to the fact that the 1000-year return period peak annual flood is 1.5 times the 100-year return period peak annual flood, while the 1000-year return period peak annual flood is 1.1 times the 100-year return period peak annual flood.

Wagner's study focuses on the role of the state in the development of the private sector in the context of the transition from a centrally planned to a market economy. The study is based on a survey of 1,000 firms in the manufacturing sector in the Czech Republic. The results show that the state has played a significant role in the development of the private sector, particularly in the early stages of the transition. The study also finds that the state has been successful in creating a favorable environment for private enterprise, but that there is still a need for further reforms to improve the efficiency of the private sector.

These results suggest that the use of a single, standard, and simple questionnaire is a feasible and effective method for gathering information on the prevalence of mental health problems in the community. The use of a single questionnaire also allows for the collection of information on a wide range of mental health problems, which is a significant advantage over the use of multiple questionnaires.
