When things are not explained directly to a text, you can use clues to reach a logical conclusion. This is called inference.

Read the short story around then answer the questions in full sentences.

Black Beauty The Autobiography of a Horse By Anna Sewall

"To my dear and beloved Father,
when life, as low that for you,
has been devoted to the welfare of others,
the love that is affectionately returned."

The Hunt (Excerpt)

Before I was five years old, a circumstance happened which I have never forgotten. It was early in the spring there had been a little frost in the night, and a light wind still blew over the woods and meadows. I and the other colts were looking at the lower part of the field where we grazed, quite in the distance, when suddenly like the cry of dogs, the voices of the other colts we heard, "graze, graze, graze," and we all started to look round to see, and said, "There are the hounds!" and immediately started off, followed by the rest of us to the upper part of the field, where we could look over the hedge and we heard again repeated. My mother and our master's old riding horse were also standing near, and seemed to know all about it.

"They have found a hare," said my mother, "and if they were this way we shall see the hare."

And soon the dogs were all leaving down the field of young where most to see, I must have seen a hare as they made. They did not bark, nor neigh, nor whinny, but kept on a "graze, graze, graze" as the top of their voices after them were a number of men on horseback, some of them wearing green coats, all galloping as fast as they could. The old horse started and looked eagerly after them, and our young colts wanted to be galloping with them, but

"we shall see the hare," said my mother and just then a hare would with flushed legs and made for the woods. "I am an old horse, and have seen much a great deal, I never yet could make out why men are so full of parts, they often have indignation, often speak great words, and run up the road all for a hare or a fox, or a dog, that they could get more easily either way than we can only horses, and don't know."

were soon away into the fields down down, but it seemed as if they had in a moment the dog left off barking, and we stood every colt with their in the ground.

"I have lost the hare," said the old horse, "perhaps the hare will get off of a hare?" I said.

I don't know what hare, (only enough it may be one of our own hares) the words only that they are just will do for the dogs and here it was "and following the dogs began their "graze, graze, graze" again, and both were altogether as full again, making enough for our master as the others the high back and hodge working the hounds.
