Who Cares About Parents? Kim Price-Glynn,2025-11-11 Who cares for parental caregivers The short answer is parenting groups do Who Cares for Parents examines how parenting groups collectively build and contribute significant resources to form a broader care infrastructure for adult family caregivers with children This book looks at the content of care parenting groups provide for parents through comparative research including mothers fathers and nonbinary parents Cases include some of the most recognizable parenting groups in the United States some with vast networks of parent members numbering in the thousands or even millions like the Parent Teacher Association La Leche League and MOMS Club International The book also examines newer and perhaps less well known groups like the City Dads Group the Upper East Side UES Mommas as well as smaller sets of local dads groups and a babysitting co op Can parents in the contemporary United States secure some of the necessary resources to provide care not only for their children but also for themselves through parenting groups The evidence from this research suggests they can Parenting groups have a long history of organizing membership meetings education material resources and advocacy to provide for parents needs Parenting groups ideologies and practices often seek broad goals and sometimes include far reaching advocacy innovative solutions and possibilities for what Price Glynn calls strategic parenting and social change. Alongside their successes, however, parenting groups also face challenges of producing narrow and temporary alliances, exclusion, and exacerbating inequalities. Despite their many challenges, Price Glynn remains hopeful about the possibilities for non-familial and collective care infrastructure like that performed by parent groups. Parents' Magazine & Better Homemaking, 1929. School Hazard Zone Pamela Althea Joyce, 2008. School Hazard Zone: Beyond the Silence, Finding a Voice explores the dynamics that help to perpetuate minority academic underachievement. Through five years of journal entries, epiphanies, and inspirations, Pamela Althea Joyce presents an honest glimpse of undemocratic practices at an urban/suburban high school. She identifies variables associated with minority achievement, examines experiences of the individuals involved, ultimately reframes the achievement gap problem, and invites the reader to take a stand on the matter. From the perspective of a teacher preoccupied with the daily challenges of minority students, Joyce identifies positive and negative influences originating from self, school, and society which play a role in tilting the academic playing field to the disadvantage of underachieving students. She provides alternatives, offering do-now, low-cost suggestions and feasible long-term ideas for closing the achievement gap. The book will be enlightening for the general public, administrators, teachers, student teachers, parents, and all individuals concerned about the future of the American educational system. TARGET, 2007. Reckoning With Racism in Family-School Partnerships Jennifer L. McCarthy Foubert, 2022. Drawing from the lived experiences of Black parents as they engaged with their children's K-12 schools, this book brings a critical race theory (CRT) analysis to family-school partnerships. The author examines persistent racism and white supremacy at school, Black parents' resistance, and ways school communities can engage in more authentic partnerships with Black and Brown families. The children in this study attended schools with varying demographics and reputations. Their parents were engaged in these schools in the highly visible ways educators and policymakers traditionally say is important for children's education, such as proactively communicating with teachers, helping with homework, and joining PTOs. The author argues that because of the relentless anti-Black racism, Black families' experience in schools, educators must depart from race-evasive approaches and commit to more liberatory family-school partnerships. Book Features: Includes an introduction to CRT and explains how it informed this study. Draws from Derrick Bell's notion of racial realism to make sense of Black parent participants advocating for high-quality education in the context of persistent anti-Black racism. Examines how Black parents resisted individualism and were instead committed to improving the education of all marginalized children Shows how white supremacy operated in shared school governance despite schools having inclusive practices Explores how anxiety and stress caused by the Trump presidency impacted parents school engagement Describes three ways any school community can develop family school partnerships for collective educational justice
