Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were randomly assigned to a control group (CON) and an exercise group (EX). The EX group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic and resistance training. The CON group remained sedentary. The EX group showed a significant decrease in HR and an increase in EE compared to the CON group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve cardiovascular fitness and increase energy expenditure in sedentary, middle-aged women.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial or non-natural light sources. Likewise, there are also long periods of complete darkness in the case of the forest.
- Several measures therefore will come with the use of the standard time specifications, the length of the day and night being determined by the local country regulations.
- The end of the night is determined by the way that the period of darkness is defined. The period of darkness is usually 12 hours, but can also be 10 or 14 hours, depending on the country. Some countries consider the 10 hours as a night.
