The Best Service is No Service Bill Price, David Jaffé, 2011-09-14 In this groundbreaking book Bill Price and David Jaffe offer a new game changing approach showing how managers are taking the wrong path and are using the wrong metrics to measure customer service Customer service they assert is only needed when a company does something wrong eliminating the need for service is the best way to satisfy customers To be successful companies need to treat service as a data point of dysfunction and figure what they need to do to eliminate the demand The Best Service Is No Service outlines these seven principles to deliver the best service that ultimately leads to no service Eliminate dumb contacts Create engaging self service Be proactive Make it easy to contact your company Own the actions across the company Listen and act Deliver great service experiences

Surprise! Vincent P. Magnini, 2014-10-05 Modern consumers are being bombarded with information from every angle They can't handle it and consequently tune out large portions of the information Consumers therefore often enter service transactions with predetermined mental scripts regarding how they predict the transactions will transpire and are not paying close attention In order to gain their full attention firms must find ways to surprise consumers during transactions that is firms must spawn mental script deviations for them Research indicates that these script deviations can cement consumer loyalty This book details how to create a surprise culture in a service firm Because a consumer can only be surprised by a given tactic one time and surprise ideas can be copied by competitors a firm with a culture that generates and implements a constant stream of surprise tactics is one that has the higher edge in achieving success in the modern environment of information overload
