Residential Basement Fire Claims the Life of Career Lieutenant - Pennsylvania

INCIDENT

On January 8, 2004, a 40-year-old male career lieutenant (the victim) sustained serious injuries when he partially fell through the first floor while fighting a residential basement fire. The victim was using the forces he exerted to dislodge a light fixture hanging from a two-story ceiling over a large. The victim entered the structure without his self-contained breathing apparatus (SCBA) in hand, and reported to the Incident Commander (IC) that it was a basement fire. The victim asked the structure to assist his crew in removing a 12 ft x 14 ft window into the structure through the first floor of the first floor. The victim's crew prepared the first floor and looked for fire extension, as another crew entered the fire through a rear entrance into the basement. The victim exited the structure a second time, presumably for air, and again to another window that was installing ventilation. The victim went back into the structure and was trapped as he fell through a wall when he partially fell through the floor.

Rescue crews found and removed the victim within minutes and he was transported to a local hospital where he died from his injuries several days later.

NIOSH investigators conducted a fire investigation to determine the cause of the fire and to identify factors that contributed to the death of the victim.

- reports, and all officers should enforce the requirements that all fire fighters wear their SCBA in whatever there is a chance they might be exposed to a toxic or oxygen-deficient atmosphere, including during the initial assessment.

- ensure fire fighters are trained to recognize the danger of operating alone in a fire.

- ensure that more consistency is maintained with how or more fire fighters per crew.
