Evidence for wave nature of light:

1. Interference fringes formation in the experiment of Young's double-slit interference.
2. Newton's experiment of dispersion of white light in triangular prism. A white light source placed just below the prism produces a spectrum.
3. Light diffraction through several materials is due to the Huygens's principle. The condition for an interference is at the constructive or destructive nature and multiple interference phenomenon.

Evidence for particle nature of light:

1. Photoelectric effect: light propagates as wave
 - a. Without sufficient frequencies of light, electron will not be ejected from metal surface even light intensity is high.
 - b. Photo electric effect is not continuous but discrete.
 - c. Photo electric effect is not dependent on intensity of light but on frequency of light.
 - d. Photo electric effect is not dependent on distance of light source from metal surface.
2. Compton Scattering results in shift of wavelength.
