algorithms and are useful in many applications. We can think of a search tree as a backward-chaining search using depth-first search. That is, starting with the goal, we first try to find a way to achieve the goal. If we fail, we try to find a way to achieve the goal by trying to achieve the goal by trying to achieve the goal. This is the approach taken by depth-first search, which can achieve many of the same results as breadth-first search. Using depth-first search, we can find the goal by trying to achieve the goal by trying to achieve the goal. It is also possible to find the goal by trying to achieve the goal by trying to achieve the goal. It is also possible to find the goal by trying to achieve the goal by trying to achieve the goal.

9.4.1 Breadth-First Search of Finding

Finding a path from a goal to a state is a search problem. The search problem is to find a path from a goal to a state. The search problem is to find a path from a goal to a state. The search problem is to find a path from a goal to a state. The search problem is to find a path from a goal to a state.
