

Strongly recommend that you prepare for this lab by reading the following text.

Statistical inference uses 2 different ways to summarize data. It either begins with a set of observed data, or with a population of data. The first begins with the entire set of population data. These data belong to one of the several cases that make up a population of study. For example, the census is a listing of all U.S. individuals, either one individual record available without the names of the other individuals, or the entire population, together, all at once. The second begins with a sample of the population.
