Rebuilding Britain Planning For A Better Future:

Rebuilding Britain Ellis, Hugh, Henderson, Kate, 2014-09-24 Britain faces extraordinary challenges from climate change to growing inequality and global economics but as a nation it has no plan for the future This unique book asks a simple question how can Britain organise itself not just for survival but to build a fairer and sustainable society The arguments refer to the high ambitions of those who pioneered the planning movement and campaigned for a clear set of progressive values but whose drive for utopia has now been forgotten The book takes a distinctive approach to exploring the value to society of social town planning and offers a doorway for how planning both morally and practically can help to meet key challenges of the 21st century It challenges the widely held view that it s impossible to achieve a better future by suggesting that there is real choice in how society develops and pointing to contemporary examples of utopia This accessible book makes essential reading for students in the built environment and the wider social sciences who have an interest in UK and European examples of sustainable communities The Future for Planners Ben Clifford, Susannah Gunn, Andy Inch, Abigail

Schoneboom, Jason Slade, Malcolm Tait, Geoff Vigar, 2024-08-21 Spatial planning is at a crossroads with government reform undermining the traditional vision of state employed planners making decisions about urban development in a unified public interest Nearly half of UK planners are now employed in the private sector with complex inter relations between the sectors including supplying outsourced services to local authorities struggling with centrally imposed budget cuts Drawing on new empirical data from a major research project Working in the Public Interest this book reveals what it s like to be a UK planner in the early 21st century and how the profession can fulfil its potential for the benefit of society and the environment

Planning Practice Jessica Ferm, John Tomaney, 2018-06-13 Planning Practice Critical Perspectives from the UK provides the only comprehensive overview of contemporary planning practice in the UK Drawing on contributions from leading researchers in the field it examines the tools contexts and outcomes of planning practice Part I examines planning processes and tools and the extent to which theory and practice diverge covering plan making Development Management planning gain public engagement and place making Part II examines the changing contexts within which planning practice takes place including privatisation and deregulation devolution and multi level governance increased ethnic and social diversity growing environmental concerns and the changing nature of commercial real estate Part III focuses on how planning practice produces outcomes for the built environment in relation to housing infrastructure economic progress public transport and regeneration The book considers what it means to be a reflective practitioner in the modern planning system the constraints and opportunities that planners face in their daily work and the ethical and political challenges they must confront

Lessons from the British and French New Towns David Fée, Bob Colenutt, Sabine Coady Schäbitz, 2020-11-18 This book explores the evolution of New Towns in France and the UK in a number of areas governance planning and heritage and assess whether their legacy can inspire current planned settlements The Green Belt, Housing Crises and Planning

Systems Charles Edward Goode, 2025-03-31 This book evaluates the effectiveness of the Green Belt planning policy in England. It is one of the most well known strategies internationally with similar growth restraint policies having been adopted in a diverse range of cities around the world such as Portland, Medellin and Bangkok. Despite this, it is often argued that Green Belts contribute to wider inequitable outcomes in society. Focusing on the Green Belt in England, the book critically analyses the extent to which these policies and planning systems contribute to housing crises and examines how far they need to be reformed. With the central role of community engagement in many of the debates about housing crises, the book investigates the characteristics of popular and campaigner opposition to housebuilding alongside investigating the power relations and politics of planning systems. This timely research taps into important current policy debates in the UK surrounding urban nature, green infrastructure and building on the grey belt. The book is therefore of relevance and benefit to policymakers and politicians, to academics and students internationally from a range of fields interested in housing, community engagement, green infrastructure, strategic planning, power and politics and conservation.

The Urban Archetypes of Jane Jacobs and Ebenezer Howard Abraham Akkerman, 2020-01-09 Ebenezer Howard, an Englishman, and Jane Jacobs, a naturalized Canadian, personify the twentieth century's opposing outlooks on cities. Howard had envisaged small towns newly built from scratch, fashioned on single family homes with small gardens. Jacobs embraced existing inner city neighbourhoods, emphasizing the verve of the living street. From Howard's idea, the American Dream of garden suburbs had emerged, yet his conceptualization of a modern city received criticism for being uniform and alienated from the rest of the city. Similarly, at the turn of the new century, Jacobs' inner city neighbourhoods came to be recognized as the result of commodification, vacillating between poverty and newly discovered hubs of urban authenticity. Presenting Howard and Jacobs within a psychocultural context, The Urban Archetypes of Jane Jacobs and Ebenezer Howard addresses our urban crisis in the recognition that city form is a gendered allegorical medium expressing femininity and masculinity within two founding features of the built environment: void and volume. Both founding contrasts bring tensions but also the opportunities of fusion between pairs of urban polarities: human scale against superscale, gait against speed and spontaneity against surveillance. Jacobs and Howard, in their respective attitudes, have come to embrace the two ancient archetypes: the Garden and the Citadel, leaving it to future generations to blend their two contrarian stances.

Smart Futures, Challenges of Urbanisation, and Social Sustainability Mohammad Dastbaz, Wim Naudé, Jamileh Manoochehri, 2018-04-10 This book tackles the challenges posed by accelerating urbanization and demystifies Social Sustainability, the least understood of all the different areas of sustainable development. The volume's twin focus on these profoundly intertwined topics creates a nuanced and vitally important resource. Large migrations from rural areas to cities without appropriate planning and infrastructure improvements, including housing, education and health care optimization, have created significant challenges across the globe. The authors suggest technology-rich strategies to meet these challenges by careful application of data on population growth.

and movement to the planning design and construction of operational infrastructures that can sustainably support our increasingly rapid population growth

Whose Land Is Our Land? Hetherington, Peter, 2015-08-26 Food security and housing a nation with an expanding population should be key priorities for a small island like Britain Yet both are being thwarted by record land prices In the last 10 years farm land has risen by almost 200% with feeding the nation a secondary consideration to speculators buying up thousands of acres annually to avoid tax If planning permission is given for new housing prices can rise fifty fold making a vast profit for a few and home ownership a distant dream for many In this provocative book journalist Peter Hetherington argues that Britain particularly England needs an active policy to address these areas and stronger action by the government This important debate will attract interest among academics and postgraduates in planning surveying housing management rural policy and social policy political organisations the Third Sector social enterprises national housing organisations community and voluntary groups

How to Build Houses and Save the Countryside Shaun Spiers, 2018-03-14 England has a housing crisis We need to build many more new homes to house our growing population but house building is controversial particularly when it involves the loss of countryside Addressing both sides of this critical debate Shaun Spiers argues that to drive house building on the scale needed government must strike a contract with civil society in return for public support and acceptance of the loss of some countryside it must guarantee high quality affordable developments in the right locations Simply imposing development as recent governments of all political persuasions have attempted will not work Focusing on house building and conservation politics in England Spiers uses his considerable experience and extensive research to demonstrate why the current model doesn't work and why there needs to be both planning reform and a more active role for the state including local government

Land Renewed Peter Hetherington, 2021-10-22 Feeding Britain while preparing for the ravages of climate change are two key issues yet there's no strategy for managing and enhancing that most precious resource our land This book explores how the pressures of leaving the EU recovering from the COVID 19 pandemic and addressing global heating present unparalleled opportunities to rework the countryside for the benefit of all Incorporating personal inspiring stories of people and places Peter Hetherington sets out the innovative measures needed for nature's recovery while protecting our most valuable farmland encouraging local food production and re-peopleing remote areas In the first book to tackle these issues holistically he argues that we need to reshape the countryside with an adventurous new agenda at the heart of government

Rethinking Poverty Barry Knight, 2017-08-30 Available Open Access under CC BY NC licence In our society a wealthy minority flourish while around one fifth experience chronic poverty and many people on middle incomes fear for their futures Social policy has failed to find answers to these problems and there is now a demand for a new narrative to enable us to escape from the crisis in our society With the aim of ending poverty this book argues that we need to start with the society we want rather than framing poverty as a problem to be solved It calls for a bold forward looking social policy that addresses continuing austerity under resourced organisations and a lack of social solidarity Based on a research programme carried out by the Webb Memorial Trust involving leading organisations academics community activists children and surveys of more than 12 000 people living in poverty a key theme is power which shows that the way forward is to increase people s sense of agency in building the society that they want

Affective Polarisation Ifor ap Glyn,Anisia Elisabeta Petcu,2023-09-25 Inequality is an ever present danger in our society This book addresses the nexus between the lived experience of inequality and how it shapes political responses It offers a powerful examination of how the politics of the UK and the lived experiences of its residents have been reframed in the first decades of the twentyfirst century

Rebuilding Britain's Blitzed Cities Catherine Flinn,2018-12-27 Many British cities were devastated by bombing during the Second World War and faced stark economic dilemmas concerning reconstruction planning and implementation after 1945 How did politicians civil servants and local authorities manage to produce the cities we live in today Rebuilding Britain s Blitzed Cities examines the underlying processes and pressures especially financial and bureaucratic which shaped postwar urbanism in Britain Catherine Flinn integrates architectural planning with in depth economic and political analyses of Britain s blitzed cities for the first time She examines early reconstruction arrangements the postwar economic apparatus and the challenges of postwar physical planning across the country while providing insightful case studies from the cities of Hull Exeter and Liverpool By addressing the ideology versus the reality of reconstruction in postwar Britain Rebuilding Britain s Blitzed Cities highlights the importance of economic and political factors for understanding the British postwar built environment

Cities Ian Douglas,2013-05-30 Cities are amongst our greatest creations Yet at the start of the twenty first century there is increasing concern over their unchecked expansion and the detrimental effect this is having on the planet as induced climate change and ever increasing demands upon the world s resources take effect How can we make the world s cities more sustainable Ian Douglas tells the story of cities why they exist how they have evolved the problems they have encountered and those they will face as our century progresses Global in geographical coverage and ranging from the cities of the classical world to the megacities of today it is the first comprehensive environmental history of cities

Sustainable Water Charles Ainger,Richard A. Fenner,2016-02-02 This book begins by exploring the challenges and issues associated with the management of all forms of water and goes on to consider water supply wastewater disposal and flood management

Ideas and Politics in Modern Britain J. C. D. Clark,2016-07-27 An examination of the ideas and politics of modern Britain It looks at the role and relations of the state and the community it both governs and serves Topics covered range from the collapse of corporate state Keynesianism to government investment in universities and science

Electoral Pledges in Britain Since 1918 David Thackeray,Richard Toye,2020-08-04 Nobody doubts that politicians ought to fulfil their promises what people cannot agree about is what this means in practice The purpose of this book is to explore this issue through a series of case studies It shows how the British model of politics has changed since the early twentieth century when electioneering was based on the articulation of principles which it was expected might well be adapted once the party or politician that promoted them took office. Thereafter manifestos became increasingly central to electoral politics and to the practice of governing and this has been especially the case since 1945. Parties were now expected to outline in detail what they would do in office and explain how the policies would be paid for. Brexit has complicated this process with the will of the people as supposedly expressed in the 2016 referendum result clashing with the conventional role of the election manifesto as offering a mandate for action.

Town and Country Planning in the UK Barry Cullingworth, Vincent Nadin, 2003-09-02

Town and Country Planning in the UK has become the Bible of British planning. In this new edition detailed consideration is given to the nature of planning and its historical evolution, central and local government, the EU and other agencies, the framework of plans and other instruments, development control, land policy and planning, green environmental and countryside planning, sustainable development, waste and pollution, heritage and transport planning, urban policies and regeneration. This twelfth edition has been completely revised and expanded to cover the whole of the UK. The new edition explains more fully the planning policies and actions of the European Union and takes into account the implications of local government reorganization, the plan-led system and the growing interest in promoting sustainable development.

Town and Country Planning in the UK J. B. Cullingworth, Vincent Nadin, 2002

Town and Country Planning in the UK has become the bible of British planning. It provides an explanation of the nature of planning, the institutions and organisations involved, the plans and other tools used by planners, planning policies and more.

When We Build Again Bournville Village Trust, 2013-07-24

Like many UK cities, Birmingham was heavily bombed during the Second World War and as with so many bombed British cities and many un-bombed ones that jumped on to the re-planning bandwagon, there was a clear imperative to reconstruct. But Birmingham was atypical in how it went about this. The city had begun planning in the mid 1930s principally to replace vast quantities of slum housing and there had been suggestions about ring roads even from the time of the First World War. So plans were available virtually ready to go and were approved by a private Act of Parliament in 1946. Yet within Birmingham there were individuals and organisations with a great interest and influence in planning matters. This followed a significant and long-standing local tradition from the Chamberlain family to Nettlefold's pioneering work on planning and housing at the start of the twentieth century. Prominent amongst these was the Cadbury family and the Bournville Village Trust and one of its immediate responses to bomb damage was the book When We Build Again. This was immediately influential in several respects as contemporary reviews and ongoing citations demonstrate. It highlighted some less palatable truths about conditions in the city and more widely with ideas about what might be done. To modern eyes some of these are radical, for example the wholesale redevelopment of the Jewellery Quarter, an area which was recently proposed for World Heritage status. The origins of the derided post-war comprehensive clearance approach lie in these papers. Further, it used innovative and striking graphics to communicate statistical information to lay readers, including the use of striking photography of places and particularly people Also included in this volume is a facsimile of a second Bournville Trust publication from 1955 Birmingham Fifty Years On This less famous but equally important publication grew from a frustration at the slow pace of post war reconstruction and envisaged what the city would look like half a century later
