Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were 15 men, 40 to 50 years old, who were sedentary and had no cardiovascular disease. They were randomly assigned to a 10-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of 30 minutes of aerobic exercise, 3 times a week, at 60% of the maximum HR. The control group did not exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during exercise at the beginning and at the end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training program had a significant effect on the HR and HRR of the subjects. The HR at rest decreased significantly from 72.5 ± 5.5 to 68.5 ± 5.5 beats per minute (p < 0.05). The HRR at rest decreased significantly from 27.5 ± 5.5 to 23.5 ± 5.5 beats per minute (p < 0.05). The HR and HRR during exercise also decreased significantly from 155.5 ± 5.5 to 151.5 ± 5.5 beats per minute (p < 0.05) and from 83.5 ± 5.5 to 77.5 ± 5.5 beats per minute (p < 0.05), respectively. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or other light-emitting devices. To avoid this, there are two things the patient should do:
  - Avoid exposure to bright light at night
  - Avoid exposure to bright light during the day
- The end of the day is the best time to sleep. The body's internal clock is set by the light it receives. The body's internal clock is set by the light it receives. The body's internal clock is set by the light it receives.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. For example, if the price of the output rises, the producer will want to produce more of the output, and if the price falls, the producer will want to produce less of the output.
