recent advances MT tools are still known to be imperfect sometimes producing critical errors To enhance the performance of MT researchers and language practitioners have developed controlled languages that impose restrictions on the form or length of the source language text However a fundamental persisting problem is that both current MT systems and controlled languages deal only with the sentence as the unit of processing To be effective controlled languages must be contextualised at the document level consequently enabling MT to generate outputs appropriate for their functional context within the target document With a specific focus on Japanese municipal documents this book establishes a framework for controlled document authoring by integrating various research strands including document formalisation controlled language and terminology management It then presents the development and evaluation of an authoring support system MuTUAL that is designed to help non professional writers create well organised documents that are both readable and translatable The book provides useful insights for researchers and practitioners interested in translation technology technical writing and natural language processing applications Chapter 1 the Preface and Bibliography of this book are freely available as downloadable Open Access PDFs at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license
