Approach to the Diagnosis and Management of Osteoporosis

NOF recommends a comprehensive approach to the diagnosis and management of osteoporosis. A detailed history and physical examination together with BMD assessment and, where appropriate, the WHO 10-year estimated fracture probability are utilized to establish the individual patient's fracture risk.⁴ Therapeutic intervention thresholds are based on NOF's economic analysis that takes into consideration the cost effectiveness of treatments and competition for resources in the US.¹⁻³ The clinician's clinical skills and past experience, incorporating the best patient-based research available, are used to determine the appropriate therapeutic intervention. The potential risks and benefits of all osteoporosis interventions should be reviewed with patients and the unique concerns and expectations of individual patients considered in any final therapeutic decision.

RISK ASSESSMENT

All postmenopausal women and men age 50 and older should be evaluated clinically for osteoporosis risk in order to determine the need for BMD testing. In general, the more risk factors that are present, the greater the risk of fracture. Osteoporosis is preventable and treatable, but because there are no warning signs prior to a fracture, many people are not being diagnosed in time to receive effective therapy during the early phase of the disease. Many factors have been associated with an increased risk of osteoporosis-related fracture (Table 1).

A Clinician's Guide to Statistics and Epidemiology in Mental Health S. Nassir Ghaemi, 2009-07-09. Accessible and clinically relevant. A Clinician's Guide to Statistics and Epidemiology in Mental Health describes statistical concepts in plain English with minimal mathematical content, making it perfect for the busy health professional. Using clear language in favour of complex terminology, limitations of statistical techniques are emphasized as well as the importance of interpretation as opposed to number crunching in analysis. Uniquely for a text of this kind, there is extensive coverage of causation and the conceptual, philosophical and political factors involved, with forthright discussion of the pharmaceutical industry's role in psychiatric research. By creating a greater understanding of the world of research, this book empowers health professionals to make their own judgments on which statistics to believe and why.
