Summer Quarter University of Washington, 1961 State Indicators of Science and Mathematics Education, 2001 Educational Matchmaking Jeannie Oakes, 1992. Reports the results of a study that compared three urban comprehensive senior high schools to better understand the rationale and processes that underlie schools' course offerings and students' coursetaking. All three schools made assumptions about their students that were related in large part to students' race and family socioeconomic status. An analysis of transcripts showed that low income and disadvantaged minority students took more vocational courses and that heavy vocational education participation was partially consistent with respondents' beliefs that such a program is best suited for students who are not expected to be successful in academic programs. Vocational programs are perceived negatively within the schools and are unlikely to receive school level support or staff development resources. The study recommends that schools press forward with experimentation and the evaluation of possibilities relating to a strong version of integrated academic and vocational education.
