Author: Nekisa Mahzad

I have been a student at California State University Channel Islands (CI) for 5 semesters, and over the course of my stay I have grown and learned more than I thought possible. I came to this school from Moorpark Community College already knowing that I wanted to be an English teacher; I had taken numerous English courses and though I knew exactly what I was headed for-was I ever wrong. Going through the English program has taught me so much more than stuff about literature and language, it has taught me how to be me. I have learned here how to write and express myself, how to think for myself, and how to find the answers to the things that I don't know. Most importantly I have learned how important literature and language are.

When I started at CI, I thought I was going to spend the next 3 years reading classics, discussing them and then writing about them. That was what I did in community college English courses, so I didn't think it would be much different here. On the surface, to an outsider, I am sure that this is what it appears that C.I. English majors do. In most all my classes I did read, discuss, and write papers; however, I quickly found out that that there was so much more to it. One specific experience I had while at C.I. really shows how integrated this learning is. Instead of writing a paper for my final project in Perspectives of Multicultural Literature (ENGL 449), I decided with a friend to venture to an Indian reservation and compare it to a book we read by Sherman Alexie. We had a great time and we learned so much more that we ever could have done from writing a paper. The opportunity to do that showed me that there are so many ways that one can learn that are both fun and educational.

The English courses also taught me how powerful the written word and language can be. Words tell so much more than a story. Stories tell about life and the human condition, they bring up the past and people and cultures that are long gone. Literature teaches about the self and the world surrounding the self. From these classes I learned about the world, its people and its history; through literature I learned how we as humans are all related. By writing about what we learn and/or what we believe, we are learning how to express ourselves.

I know that my ability to write and express my ideas, thoughts and knowledge has grown stronger each semester. I have always struggled to put my thoughts on paper in a manner that is coherent and correct according to assignments. I can remember being told numerous times in community college to "organize your

Hatch, 2021-12-15 With the dramatic changes OPEC precipitated in the structure of world energy markets during the 1970s energy became a central concern to policymakers throughout the industrialized West This book examines the responses of public officials in three leading European nations the Federal Republic of Germany France and the Netherlands to the energy crisis As the study shows the proposed energy programs in the three countries shared remarkable similarities yet the policy outcomes were very different To explain why Michael T Hatch goes beyond the specific content of government energy policy to include an analysis of the policymaking process itself At the heart of the study is an exploration of the various dimensions of nuclear policy in West Germany The political consensus on nuclear power that prevailed in the initial years following the energy crisis disintegrated as antinuclear citizens initiatives the courts and trade unions as well as the traditional political parties entered the policymaking process Subsequent government efforts to resolve the political stalemate over nuclear power foundered in a morass of domestic electoral politics and an international debate over nuclear proliferation Extending the analysis to comparisons with French and Dutch nuclear strategies Hatch argues that the critical factor in determining nuclear policy was the manner in which the political system structured the nuclear debate In contrast to West Germany where the electoral and parliamentary systems enhanced the influence of the antinuclear Greens the electoral system and constellation of political parties in France served to dissipate the influence of the antinuclear forces Thus in France the nuclear program encountered few impediments In the Netherlands as in West Germany government policy was paralyzed in the face of antinuclear sentiment across a broad spectrum of Dutch society Hatch has provided here not only a useful examination of the development of energy policy in western Europe but also a case study of the close interplay between policy and politics Writing Theology Well 2nd Edition Lucretia B.
