

SAMPLE OF REFLECTIVE JOURNAL

The first day began by introducing mentors Iliana Fredric and Landin Lancer, who together make the head team of the office. They tried to ease my tension down at first with a leery conversation, then talking about the tasks that awaited me in the following days in practice. Then the mentor took me to other departments to meet other employees and see what they are doing. The company is subdivided into teams working on projects of Internet-related clients. Teams involved in developing the product themselves consist of backend and frontend developers, and are assisted by a team of web designers. Then there is a sales team, a communication with clients, and the management of the entire electronic commerce and business process over the Internet.

My first task was to create a new account so I could get emails and track my tasks. I created an official mail account, a daily task scan tool, and an official Skype so I could communicate with the mentor and other colleagues more easily. The second day of practice began with a discussion on human resource management, the ways in which they work, and all the disadvantages they face and want to avoid. Office managers create a table for each employee and send them, and they must then fill in and cheat. After the returned tables, the missing data are added, then the tables are printed and manually added hours, followed by reports that forward the signature to the circulator. When the director returns the signed report, the same is carried on to the bookkeeping service in order to calculate the salary. The office manager's desire is to make this process more automated. Also, the problem is the distribution of holidays and sick leave. After explaining to me how they manage human potentials and that they do not like them in their system, i.e. what they would like, I began by researching tools that enable efficient human resources management. The Internet is full of tools that in one way or another provide different ways of managing human resources. By searching, I really encountered a large number of tools, and I briefly studied the characteristics and put a short

Journal Writing in Second Language Education Christine Pearson Casanave,2011-02-04 Journal writing is not new journals have been around for centuries More recently journals have been viewed as a means of scaffolding reflective teaching and encouraging reflectivity in research processes As a result some educators may ask What more do we need to know Those likely to raise this question are probably not thinking of the explosive growth of reflective writing enabled by social networking on the Web the blogs and other interactive e vehicles for reflection on experiences in our literate real and virtual lives This revisiting of journal writing from a 21st century perspective informed by relevant earlier literature is what Christine Pearson Casanave guides readers through in this first book length treatment of the use of journal writing in the contexts of language learning pre and in service teaching and research Casanave has put together existing ideas that haven't been put together before and has done it not as an edited collection but as a single authored book. She has done it in a way that will be especially accessible to teachers in language teacher education programs and to practicing teachers and researchers of writing in both second and foreign language settings and in a way that will inspire all of us to think about not just doing journal writing. Those who have never attempted to use journals in their classes and own lives as well as others who have used it with mixed results will probably be tempted to try it in at least some of the venues Casanave provides guidance for. Those already committed to journal writing will very likely find in this book new reasons for expanding and enhancing their use of journals.

A New Writing Classroom Patrick Sullivan, 2014-11-15

In A New Writing Classroom Patrick Sullivan provides a new generation of teachers a means and a rationale to reconceive their approach to teaching writing, calling into question the discipline's dependence on argument. Including secondary writing teachers within his purview, Sullivan advocates a more diverse, exploratory and flexible approach to writing activities in grades six through thirteen. A New Writing Classroom encourages teachers to pay more attention to research in learning theory, transfer of learning, international models for nurturing excellence in the classroom, and recent work in listening to teach students the sort of dialogic stance that leads to higher order thinking and more sophisticated communication. The conventional argumentative essay is often a simplistic form of argument widely believed to be the most appropriate type of writing in English classes, but other kinds of writing may be more valuable to students and offer more important kinds of cognitive challenges. Focusing on listening and dispositions or habits of mind as central elements of this new composition pedagogy, A New Writing Classroom draws not just on composition studies but also on cognitive psychology, philosophy, learning theory, literature, and history, making an exciting and significant contribution to the field.
