If a person with achondroplasia mates with a person who does not have achondroplasia, what percentage of their children would be expected to have achondroplasia? Draw the Punnet Square for the cross.
- A. 0%
☒ B. 50%
 C. 75%
 D. 100%

2. The parents of a child with unusual disease symptoms take the child to a doctor for help. The doctor suspects that the condition might have a genetic basis. She recommends that the child be taken to a specialty clinic where physicians and staff members are trained to diagnose genetic diseases and counsel parents. Ultimately, the child is diagnosed with a rare recessively inherited disease. The parents are tested for the gene, and both are found to be heterozygous. The parents want to have another child but are afraid this child will also be affected.

What would genetic counselors say is the probability that the second child will have the disease? Draw the Punnet Square for the cross.

- A. 1/8
☒ B. 1/4
 C. 1/16
 D. 1/2

Mary: nn / John: Hn

4. Construct a Punnett square to represent the cross between Mary and John. What is the chance of a child of them having Huntington's disease? Hint: the answer is not 1/3.

2/4 50%

5. What is the phenotypic ratio for the Punnet square in question 4?

2 with : 2 without

6. What is the genotypic ratio for the Punnet square in question 4?

Dictyostelium discoideum Protocols Ludwig Eichinger,2008-02-02 Dictyostelium discoideum is a simple but fascinating eukaryotic microorganism whose natural habitat is deciduous forest soil and decaying leaves where the amoebae feed on bacteria and grow as independent single cells Exhaustion of the bacterial food source triggers a developmental program in which up to 100 000 cells aggregate by chemotaxis towards cAMP Morphogenesis and cell differentiation then culminate in the production of spores enabling the organism to survive unfavorable conditions Dictyostelium offers unique advantages for studying fundamental cellular processes with the aid of powerful molecular genetic biochemical and cell biological tools. These processes include signal transduction, chemotaxis, cell motility, cytokinesis, phagocytosis, and aspects of development such as cell sorting, pattern formation, and cell type differentiation. Recently Dictyostelium was also described as a suitable host for pathogenic bacteria in which one can conveniently study the process of infection. In addition, Dictyostelium has many of the experimental conveniences of Saccharomyces cerevisiae and is probably the best experimentally manipulatable protozoan providing insight into this diverse group of organisms which includes some of the most dangerous human parasites. The recent completion of the Dictyostelium genome sequencing project strengthens the position of D. discoideum as a model organism. The completed genome sequence and other valuable community resources constitute the source for basic biological and biomedical research and for genome wide analyses.

Active Learning: Theoretical Perspectives, Empirical Studies and Design Profiles Robert Cassidy, Elizabeth S. Charles, James D. Slotta, Nathaniel Lasry, 2019-07-11 This book represents the emerging efforts of a growing international network of researchers and practitioners to promote the development and uptake of evidence based pedagogies in higher education at something of a level approaching large scale impact. By offering a communication venue that attracts and enhances much needed partnerships among practitioners and researchers in pedagogical innovation we aim to change the conversation and focus on how we work and learn together i.e. extending the implementation and knowledge of co design methods. In this first edition of our Research Topic on Active Learning we highlight two of the three types of publications we wish to promote. First are studies aimed at understanding the pedagogical designs developed by practitioners in their own practices by bringing to bear the theoretical lenses developed and tested in the education research community. These types of studies constitute the practice pull that we see as a necessary counterbalance to knowledge push in a more productive pedagogical innovation ecosystem based on research/practitioner partnerships. Second are studies empirically examining the implementations of evidence based designs in naturalistic settings and under naturalistic conditions. Interestingly the teams conducting these studies are already exemplars of partnerships between researchers and practitioners who are uniquely positioned as in betweens straddling the two worlds. As a result these publications represent both the rigours of research and the pragmatism of reflective practice In forthcoming editions we will add to this collection a third type of publication design profiles These will present practitioner developed pedagogical designs at varying levels of abstraction to be held to scrutiny amongst practitioners instructional designers and researchers alike We hope by bringing these types of studies together in an open access format that we may contribute to the development of new forms of practitioner researcher interactions that promote co design in pedagogical innovation
