Tolchin, 2007-01-01 Part Blood Part Ketchup analyzes novels by 20th century authors Edith Wharton J D Salinger Philip Roth John Irving and Jamaica Kincaid uncovering trends that obliterate cultural divides With unrestrained American voices the collective pitch of their complaints soars revealing an unmistakable formula of heightened self exposure and fury As in the case of protagonists on the page and the screen it becomes difficult to distinguish authentic suffering from performance_ or in the words of one reviewer_the ratio of blood to ketchup Breathtaking in scope Part Blood Part Ketchup situates over one hundred years of literature and film within national historical and global contexts tracing 19th century European allegations of a troubling narrowness in the American character to contemporary insights about the global superpower Ultimately Karen Tolchin finds that subtle evolution of the American coming of age narrative has performed significant cultural work in the construction of our national mythology

The Adaptation Industry Simone Murray, 2012-03-12 Adaptation constitutes the driving force of contemporary culture with stories adapted across an array of media formats However adaptation studies has been concerned almost exclusively with textual analysis in particular with compare and contrast studies of individual novel and film pairings This has left almost completely unexamined crucial questions of how adaptations come to be made what are the industries with the greatest stake in making them and who the decision makers are in the adaptation process The Adaptation Industry re imagines adaptation not as an abstract process but as a material industry It presents the adaptation industry as a cultural economy of six interlocking institutions stakeholders and decision makers all engaged in the actual business of adapting texts authors agents publishers book prize committees scriptwriters and screen producers and distributors Through trading in intellectual property rights to cultural works these six nodal points in the adaptation network are tightly interlinked with success for one party potentially auguring for success in other spheres But marked rivalries between these institutional forces also exist with competition characterizing every aspect of the adaptation process This book constructs an overdue sociology of contemporary literary adaptation never losing sight of the material and institutional dimensions of this powerful process
