The Appearance of Character Melissa Percival, 1999 Physiognomy the notion that there is a relationship between character and physical appearance is often dismissed as a marginal pseudoscience however The Appearance of Character argues that it is central to many disciplines and thought processes and that it constantly adapts itself to current patterns of thought and modes of discourse This interdisciplinary study determines the characteristics of physiognomical thought in France during the previously neglected period leading up to the reception of Johann Caspar Lavater's physiognomy in the early 1780s It establishes a corpus of physiognomical texts juxtaposing mainstream figures such as Buffon and Diderot with a host of minor writers It then considers the representation of the passions in art examining the legacy of Charles LeBrun and revealing an aesthetics of facial representation where the passions are conceived in terms of multiplicity speed and nuance The contribution of the Comte de Caylus to the development of the tête d'expression is analysed as well as the innovations of Greuze in the field of expression Physiognomy in portraiture is also addressed through the work of La Tour Facial expression in painting is found to have strong parallels with contemporary acting theory and stage practice Finally The Appearance of Character addresses the notion of character outlining various predominant theories and analysing the complex relationship between character and passions In this respect the study has ramifications for theories of the self and individualism in the Enlightenment and beyond

The Great Cat & Dog Massacre Hilda Kean, 2022-12-22 The tragedies of World War II are well known But at least one has been forgotten in September 1939 four hundred thousand cats and dogs were massacred in Britain The government vets and animal charities all advised against this killing So why would thousands of British citizens line up to voluntarily euthanize household pets In The Great Cat and Dog Massacre Hilda Kean unearths the history piecing together the compelling story of the life and death of Britain's wartime animal companions She explains that fear of imminent Nazi bombing and the desire to do something to prepare for war led Britons to sew blackout curtains dig up flower beds for vegetable patches send their children away to the countryside and kill the family pet in theory sparing them the suffering of a bombing raid Kean's narrative is gripping unfolding through stories of shared experiences of bombing food restrictions sheltering and mutual support Soon pets became key to the war effort providing emotional assistance and helping people to survive a contribution for which the animals gained government recognition Drawing extensively on new research from animal charities state archives diaries and family stories Kean does more than tell a virtually forgotten story She complicates our understanding of World War II as a good war fought by a nation of good people Accessibly written and generously illustrated Kean s account of this forgotten aspect of British history moves animals to center stage forcing us to rethink our assumptions about ourselves and the animals with whom we share our homes
