

Meiosis, or sex cell division

At the onset of meiosis, DNA strands thicken into chromosomes. Homologous, or like, chromosomes begin to approach each other.

Homologous chromosomes pair to form bivalents. The centrioles divide and move to opposite poles of the cell.

The bivalents duplicate to form tetrads, or four-chromatid groups. The nuclear membrane disintegrates. Crossing over (recombination) occurs.

In metaphase I, the tetrads, attached to spindle fibers at their centromeres, line up at mid-cell.

In early anaphase I, the tetrads separate, and the paired chromatids move along the spindle to their respective centrioles.

In late anaphase I, the chromatids have almost reached the spindle poles. The cell membrane begins to constrict.

In telophase I, nuclear membranes enclose the separated chromatids. The cell membrane completes its constriction.

The first meiotic division ends. There are now two cells, each with the same number of chromatids as the parent cell.

Prophase II begins. In the second meiotic division, homologous chromatids do not duplicate but merely separate.

In metaphase II, the chromatids line up at mid-cell. The centrioles and asters are at the poles. A spindle has formed.

In anaphase II, the now-separated chromatids approach their respective poles. The cell membrane begins to constrict.

Telophase II has been completed. There are now four cells, each with half the number of chromosomes of the parent cell.

Principles of Cell Biology George Plopper,Diana Bebek Ivankovic,2020-02-03 Principles of Cell Biology Third Edition is an educational eye opening text with an emphasis on how evolution shapes organisms on the cellular level Students will learn the material through 14 comprehensible principles which give context to the underlying theme that make the details fit together Proteomics of Spermatogenesis G. S. Gupta,2006-07-02 Recent developments of experimental techniques in cellular and molecular biology have made it possible to understand the molecular biology of male gametogenesis in greater detail This book focuses on the description of specialized proteins which are dominantly and or specifically expressed in germ cells and localized in spermatozoa There is an urgent need to classify proteins of spermatogenic cells with a view of their functions and their applications in the regulation of fertility and in understanding infertility The understanding of structural properties of male germ cell specific proteins can offer vulnerable points for targeted intervention in testis without generalized effects on stages of spermatogenesis Besides targeted action in male germ cells sperm specific proteins and polypeptides may also offer potential application in the development of a contraceptive vaccine

The Enigmatic Realm of Section 14 Meiosis: Unleashing the Language is Inner Magic
