Authoring Tools for Advanced Technology Learning Environments T. Murray, Stephen Blessing, S.

Ainsworth, 2003-12-31 This edited book gives a comprehensive picture of the state of the art in authoring systems and authoring tools for advanced technology instructional systems. It includes descriptions of fifteen systems and research projects from almost every significant effort in the field. The book will appeal to researchers, teachers, and advanced students working in education, instructional technology, and computer-based education, psychology, cognitive science, and computer science.

Basis of Plant Pathogenesis J.E. Vanderplank, 2012-12-06 As befits a volume in the Advanced Series in Agricultural Sciences, this book was written with problems of practical agriculture in mind. One of the ways of controlling plant disease is by using resistant cultivars, and from the wide literature of genetics and biochemistry in plant pathology I have emphasized what seems to bear most closely on breeding for disease resistance. This has a double advantage for it happens all to the good that this emphasis is also an emphasis on primary causes of disease as distinct from subsequent processes of symptom expression and other secondary effects. The chapters are entirely modern in outlook. The great revolution in biology this century had its high moments in the elucidation of the DNA double helix in 1953 and the deciphering of the genetic code in 1961. This book, so far as I know, is the first in plant pathology to be conceived within the framework of this new biology. Half the book could not have been written 20 years ago even if there had then been available all the literature that has since accumulated on the genetics and chemistry of plant disease. The new biology is the cement this book uses to bind the literature together. Another feature of this book is an emphasis on thermodynamics. Reading English with Awareness -

Level A Yael Bejarano, 2003 Current Advances in Coconut Biotechnology C. Oropeza, J.L. Verdeil, G.R. Ashburner, R. Cardeña, J.M. Santamaría, 2013-04-17 The coconut palm occupies a significant place in the world economy as an important subsistence crop in all the areas in which it is grown. Relatively few countries are able to export any quantity of coconut products because of increasing home demands coupled with low productivity. Yields are generally well below potential despite recent developments with improved planting stock and agronomic practices. In the last 50 years both these aspects have received considerable attention but the focus is shifting to investigate how the use of recently developed biotechnological techniques can benefit the coconut industry. This volume, the result of the International Symposium on Coconut Biotechnology held in December 1997 in Merida, Yucatan, Mexico, describes recent research in three important areas. Standard plant breeding techniques used with coconut have produced improved planting material but progress is inevitably very slow. Can more rapid genetic improvement be obtained using molecular techniques? The papers presented in this section suggest that such techniques will open up exciting new prospects but only after basic information has been gathered on the genetic status of existing coconut stocks Research using microsatellite techniques seems to provide a useful tool to help to classifying these stocks However only a combination of classical breeding methods with modern techniques will lead to the rapid improvement which is required to supply material for urgent replanting programs Modern Biology V.
