Carsey,1992-04-08 Published by the American Geophysical Union as part of the Geophysical Monograph Series Volume 68 Human activities in the polar regions have undergone incredible changes in this century Among these changes is the revolution that satellites have brought about in obtaining information concerning polar geophysical processes Satellites have flown for about three decades and the polar regions have been the subject of their routine surveillance for more than half that time Our observations of polar regions have evolved from happenstance ship sightings and isolated harbor icing records to routine global records obtained by those satellites Thanks to such abundant data we now know a great deal about the ice covered seas which constitute about 10% of the Earth s surface This explosion of information about sea ice has fascinated scientists for some 20 years We are now at a point of transition in sea ice studies we are concerned less about ice itself and more about its role in the climate system This change in emphasis has been the prime stimulus for this book Representation in Old Testament Narrative Texts Jacobus Marais,2021-10-11 This work focuses on the literary conventions of narrative texts in the Hebrew Bible in particular the mode of representation in the book of Judges The theory of integrational semantics developed by Benjamin Hrushovski is systematized to form a theoretical framework within which representation is conceptualized The author suggests a novel reading of the Judges narratives to demonstrate particular conventions of representation The notions of paradoxality perspectivity and juxtaposition are used to demonstrate the potential value of types of logic alternative to modernist logic in reading ancient Hebrew narratives A hypothetical representeme is constructed for the book of Judges to make it clear that the mode of representation is neither mimesis nor historiography but narrative representing by convention and not by correspondence to history A Dictionary of Applied Physics Richard Glazebrook,1923 The Editor ,1915 The Best Books: H, Natural science. I. Dimitrienko,2016-01-14 This pioneering book presents new models for the thermomechanical behavior of composite materials and structures taking into account internal physico chemical transformations such as thermodecomposition sublimation and melting at high temperatures up to 3000 K It is of great importance for the design of new thermostable materials and for the investigation of reliability and fire safety of composite structures It also supports the investigation of interaction of composites with laser irradiation and the design of heat shield systems Structural methods are presented for calculating the effective mechanical and thermal properties of matrices fibres and unidirectional reinforced by dispersed particles and textile composites in terms of properties of their constituent phases Useful calculation methods are developed for characteristics such as the rate of thermomechanical erosion of composites under high speed flow and the heat deformation of composites with account of chemical shrinkage The author expansively compares modeling results with experimental data and readers will find unique experimental results on mechanical and thermal properties of composites under temperatures up to 3000 K Chapters show how the behavior of composite shells under high temperatures is simulated by the finite element method and so cylindrical and axisymmetric composite shells and composite plates are investigated under local high temperature heating The book will be of interest to researchers and to engineers designing composite structures and invaluable to materials scientists developing advanced performance thermostable materials
