Successful Personal Statements to Get You into a Top University Warren Zhang,Hemant Mohapatra,2014-02-20

This book will help aspiring undergraduates through the competitive admissions process for some of the world's top universities. It will help prospective candidates answer a very specific question: what makes a successful personal statement? Using a collection of real-life personal statements from students recently accepted into Cambridge University across all subjects, the authors provide a behind-the-scenes look into what it takes to be admitted into a top academic institution. The result is a book that offers a rare insight into the often opaque and complex thought process that goes into accepting or rejecting a candidate and provides a benchmark for all students looking to study at top universities around the world.

Understanding Employer Engagement in Education Anthony Mann, Julian Stanley, Louise Archer, 2014-05-30 This collection focuses on employer engagement in education: how it is delivered and the differentiated impact it has on young people in their progression through schooling and higher education into the labour market. The focus is not narrowly on vocational or technical education or work-related learning but on how employer engagement (eg work experience, internships, careers education, workplace visits, mentoring, enterprise education, etc.) influences the experiences and outcomes of the broad range of young people across mainstream academic learning programmes. The essays explore the different ways in which education can support or constrain social mobility and, in particular, how employer engagement in education can have significant impact upon social mobility, both positive and negative. Leading international contributors examine issues surrounding employer engagement and social mobility, conceptualisations of employer engagement, trends in social mobility, employer engagement and social class access, and management of work experience, social capital, and aspiration access to employment. The book makes employer engagement an innovative focus in relation to the well-established fields of social mobility and school-to-work transition. By examining what difference employer engagement makes, the essays raise questions about conventional models and show how research drawing on different fields and disciplines can be brought together to provide a more coherent and convincing account. Building on new theorisations and combining existing and new data, the collection offers a systematic exploration of the influence of socio-economic status on school-to-work transitions and addresses how educational policy can shape more efficient labour market outcomes. In doing so, it draws on and speaks to existing literature which has considered such questions from the perspectives of gender, ethnicity, and social disadvantage.

Widening Participation in Higher Education Great Britain. National Audit Office, 2008 Some progress is being made in encouraging under represented groups to continue into higher education but particular sections of society remain significantly under represented and too little is known about the link between measures taken by institutions and any improvements in access The attainment of qualifications at secondary school is the principal reason for the difference in participation rates but social class remains a strong determinant of higher education participation Women are better represented than men and those from non white ethnic groups are better represented than white people The report finds that white people from lower socio economic groups are the most under represented group in higher education institutions There are also significant variations between academic institutions in how good they are at widening participation In 2006 07 one sixth of institutions made less progress than expected in recruiting students from areas with low participation Those that became universities post 1992 generally do better than the Russell Group universities an association of 20 self selected major research intensive institutions Incomplete data on student background hinders accurate assessment of which groups are under represented There is insufficient information about the full range of activities aimed at widening participation making it difficult to identify which activities are most effective Higher education is not always provided in ways that make it accessible to individuals from under represented groups Some students and potential students have limited understanding of the different types of financial support available to them The Department for Innovation Universities and Skills should lead efforts to create a comprehensive and accessible source of information to support potential applicants from under represented groups
