Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were randomly assigned to either a control group (CON) or a training group (TRN). The TRN group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise. The CON group remained sedentary. The HR and EE were measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week training program. The TRN group showed a significant decrease in HR and a significant increase in EE compared to the CON group. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness and energy expenditure of sedentary, middle-aged women.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial or non-natural light sources. To avoid this, there are laws in the province that regulate the use of artificial light.
- Artificial sources of light will commonly interfere with the natural circadian rhythms, the length of the day and night, depending on the use of indoor lighting.
- The use of artificial light at night may change the pineal gland's production of melatonin, a hormone that regulates sleep. Sleep is most sensitive to these changes at night.
- Sleep, therefore, is disrupted by the use of artificial light.
