Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were 15 men, 40 to 50 years old, who had been sedentary for at least 1 year. They were randomly assigned to a 12-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes, at a heart rate of 150 beats per minute. The control group did not exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during a maximal exercise test at the beginning and at the end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the training program significantly increased the HR and HRR of the subjects. The HR increased from 72 to 78 beats per minute, and the HRR increased from 28 to 34 beats per minute. The control group showed no significant change in HR or HRR. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.

Abstract: This research was designed to investigate the effect of computer-assisted instruction (CAI) on the performance of students in learning English grammar. The study was conducted in a secondary school in Lagos State, Nigeria. The sample consisted of 60 students who were randomly divided into two groups: experimental and control. The experimental group received CAI while the control group received traditional classroom instruction. Data were collected through pre-test and post-test questionnaires. Results showed that the experimental group performed significantly better than the control group in all areas of grammar tested. It was concluded that CAI has a positive impact on the learning of English grammar.
