Westerberg makes this journey easier by offering a continuum of options with four destinations on the road to improved grading and assessment Destination 1 critically examines such popular grading mechanisms as the zero extra credit the semester killer project averaging mixing academic performance with work ethic and refusing to accept late work and explains how they undermine objectivity and instead result in widely divergent grades for comparable work with major consequences for students Destination 2 invites educators to put assessment and grading into the larger context of a districtwide guaranteed and viable curriculum and lays out the organizational conditions and necessary steps to accomplish this goal Destination 3 brings parents and others on board with a multiyear implementation plan and community engagement strategies for introducing report cards that indicate student achievement by standards rather than or in addition to letter grades Destination 4 competency based education involves a total rethinking of the nature and structure of school leading to individualized education for all students However far they choose to go administrators and teacher leaders can turn to Charting a Course to Standards Based Grading for the quick wins and long term support and guidance they need to make the trip well worth the effort Grading for Equity Joe Feldman, 2018-09-25 Joe Feldman shows us how we can use grading to help students become the leaders of their own learning and lift the veil on how to succeed This must have book will help teachers learn to implement improved equity focused grading for impact Zaretta Hammond Author of Culturally Responsive Teaching The Brain Crack open the grading conversation Here at last and none too soon is a resource that delivers the research base tools and courage to tackle one of the most challenging and emotionally charged conversations in today's schools our inconsistent grading practices and the ways they can inadvertently perpetuate the achievement and opportunity gaps among our students With Grading for Equity Joe Feldman cuts to the core of the conversation revealing how grading practices that are accurate bias resistant and motivational will improve learning minimize grade inflation reduce failure rates and become a lever for creating stronger teacher student relationships and more caring classrooms Essential reading for schoolwide and individual book study or for student advocates Grading for Equity provides A critical historical backdrop describing how our inherited system of grading was originally set up as a sorting mechanism to provide or deny opportunity control students and endorse a fixed mindset about students academic potential practices that are still in place a century later A summary of the research on motivation and equitable teaching and learning establishing a rock solid foundation and a for Equity Everest Media,2022-06-13T22:59:00Z Please note This is a companion version not the original book Sample Book Insights 1 Mallory the principal of a new charter school in California noticed that the students were not achieving the same success in their classes regardless of which teacher they had She realized that the teachers were not aligned with what and how they were teaching and that by all accounts the performance of students should be comparable across teachers of the same course 2 Mallory was a teacher in a school that had three different math teachers She found that the students in the classes with the lowest and highest rates of D and F grades received similar standardized test scores and that the classes with the lowest and highest rates of absences were also the ones with the lowest and highest rates of D and F grades 3 Some teachers had only three categories of assignments Tests Classwork and Homework Others had more subjective categories such as Citizenship Participation and Effort The school had spent months planning and coordinating to ensure that teachers were using sequenced curriculum but their different approaches to grading was undermining all of it 4 When Mallory began to discuss grades with her teachers she was shocked to learn that they varied by teacher in every school She wondered if this was an unavoidable part of schools like the annoying bells between classes the complaints about cafeteria food and the awkward physical education outfits Wad-ja-get?
