Reconstructing Development Theory International Inequality Institutional Reform And Social Emancipation:

Reconstructing Development Theory E.A. Brett, 2009-07-08 The book provides a systematic assessment of the evolution of development theory its relationship to orthodox social science analysis and the liberal pluralistic orthodoxy that now dominates the mainstream approach to international development showing how we can transcend its failure to address some key problems of late and uneven development

International Development Bruce Currie-Alder, Ravi Kanbur, David M. Malone, Rohinton Medhora, 2014-02-27 Thinking on development informs and inspires the actions of people organizations and states in their continuous effort to invent a better world This volume examines the ideas behind development their origins how they have changed and spread over time and how they may evolve over the coming decades It also examines how the real life experiences of different countries and organizations have been inspired by and contributed to thinking on development The extent to which development works depends in part on particular local historical or institutional contexts General policy prescriptions fail when the necessary conditions that make them work are either absent ignored or poorly understood There is a need to grasp how people understand their own development experience If the countries of the world are varied in every way from their initial conditions to the degree of their openness to outside money and influence and success is not centred in any one group it stands to reason that there cannot be a single recipe for development Each chapter provides an analytical survey of thinking about development that highlights debates and takes into account critical perspectives It includes contributions from scholars and practitioners from the global North and the global South spanning at least two generations and multiple disciplines It will be a key reference on the concepts and theories of development their origins evolution and trajectories and act as a resource for scholars graduate students and practitioners

The European Union, Africa and the Sustainable Development Goals Lars Niklasson, 2024-03-12 The European Union has high ambitions in relation to Africa and in achieving the UN Sustainable Development Goals One example is the new Africa Strategy where the EU wants to have a strong partnership with the African Union Other European policies contribute to the lofty objectives of the EU which is the world's largest donor of development aid The high ambitions are not matched by the implementation The European policies shaped by the Commission and the member states are partly contradictory and hard to fulfill locally in Africa Furthermore they are focused on intentions rather than outcomes The European policies need to be decentered to allow for the African context to play a larger role in the design and execution of policies The Sustainable Development Goals call for fundamental transformations where political and economic development are of great importance to reach the social and environmental goals This implies greater attention to the drivers and barriers for political and economic transformation in Africa It also calls for a greater interest in the relationship between donors and recipients to build trust and to find mutual gain The EU needs to recognize that it is dependent on its African partners while it simultaneously wants to influence and revise some of the African policies

Challenges for the Democratisation Process in Tanzania Jonas Ewald, 2013 Tanzania has been independent in 2011 for 50 years While most neighbouring states have gone through violent conflicts Tanzania has managed to implement extensive reforms without armed political conflicts Hence Tanzania is an interesting case for Peace and Development research This dissertation analyses the political development in Tanzania since the introduction of the multiparty system in 1992 with a focus on the challenges for the democratisation process in connection with the 2000 and 2005 elections The question of to what extent Tanzania had moved towards a consolidation of democracy is analysed by looking at nine different institutions of importance for democratisation grouped in four spheres the state the political civil and economic society Focus is on the development of the political society and the role of the opposition in particular The analysis is based on secondary and primary material collected between September 2000 to April 2010 The main conclusion is that even if the institutions of liberal democracy have gradually developed in practice single party rule has continued manifested in the 2005 election when the CCM won 92% of seats Despite impressive economic growth poverty remains deep and has not been substantially reduced On a theoretical level this brings the old debate between liberal and substantive democracy back to the fore Neither the economic nor the political reforms have brought about a transformation of the political and economic system resulting in the poor majority gaining substantially more political influence and improved economic conditions Hence it is argued that the interface between the economic political and administrative reforms has not been sufficiently considered in the liberal democratic tradition Liberal democracy is necessary for a democratic development but not sufficient for democracy to be consolidated For that a substantive democratic development is necessary

 Angela M. Labrador,Neil Asher Silberman,2018-07-11 The Oxford Handbook of Public Heritage Theory and Practice charts some of the major sites of convergence between the humanities and the social sciences where new disciplinary perspectives are being brought to bear on the field of cultural heritage These convergences have the potential to provide the interdisciplinary expertise needed not only to critique but also to achieve the intertwined intellectual political and socioeconomic goals of cultural heritage in the twenty first century Ensuring Sustainable Development Goals do not Become Rhetoric Aruna Sharma,2025-02-11 Pandemics and economic wars cannot excuse a stagnation in progress towards the Sustainable Development Goals SDG The SDG index has stalled since 2020 and was one full point below the projections in 2022 Only 12% of targets are currently on track Half are facing moderate or severe deviations due to stagnation in the face of multiple crises and 30% more have either stagnated or regressed To ensure that SDGs are not reduced to mere rhetoric like the Millennium Development Goals MDG and to accelerate progress towards the household related goals SDGs 1 to 7 10 11 16 and 17 and develop environmentally friendly sustainable livelihood opportunities SDGs 8 and 9 the strategy has to have specific targets rather than a thin spread of efforts This book argues in favour of a shift to a common household database for each of the countries with real examples of the progress of developed developing and underdeveloped economies towards achieving the SDG goals 1 to 7 10 11 16 and 17

The Oxford Handbook of Africa and Economics Célestin Monga,Justin Yifu Lin,2015-07-02 For a long time economic research on Africa was not seen as a profitable venture intellectually or professionally few researchers in top ranked institutions around the world chose to become experts in the field This was understandable the reputation of Africa centered economic research was not enhanced by the well known limitations of economic data across the continent Moreover development economics itself was not always fashionable and the broader discipline of economics has had its ups and downs and has been undergoing a major identity crisis because it failed to predict the Great Recession Times have changed many leading researchers including a few Nobel laureates have taken the subject of Africa and economics seriously enough to devote their expertise and creativity to it They have been amply rewarded the richness complexities and subtleties of African societies civilizations rationalities and ways of living have helped renew the humanities and the social sciences and economics in particular to the point that the continent has become the next major intellectual frontier to researchers from around the world In collecting some of the most authoritative statements about the science of economics and its concepts in the African context this handbook the first of two volumes opens up the diverse acuity of commentary on exciting topics and in the process challenges and stimulates the quest for knowledge Wide ranging in its scope themes language and approaches this volume explores examines and assesses economic thinking on Africa and Africa s contribution to the discipline The editors bring a set of powerful resources to this endeavor most notably a team of internationally renowned economists whose diverse viewpoints are complemented by the perspectives of philosophers political scientists and anthropologists
