Becoming Buddhist Glenys Eddy, 2012-02-02 What does it mean to be a Western Buddhist? For the predominantly Anglo Australian affiliates of two Western Buddhist centres in Australia, the author proposes an answer to this question and finds support for it from interviews and her own participant observation experience. Practitioners' prior experiences of experimentation with spiritual groups and practices and their experiences of participation practice and self transformation are examined with respect to their roles in practitioners' appropriation of the Buddhist worldview and their subsequent commitment to the path to enlightenment. Religious commitment is experienced as a decision point itself; the effect of the individual's experimental immersion in the Centre's activities. During this time the claims of the Buddhist worldview are tested against personal experience and convictions. Using rich ethnographic data and Lofland and Skonovd's experimental conversion motif as a model for theorizing the stages of involvement leading to commitment, the author demonstrates that this study has a wider application to our understanding of the role of alternative religions in western contexts.

Developments in Australian Buddhism Michelle Spuler, 2014-04-04 This book examines the adaptation of Buddhism to the Australian sociocultural context. To gain insight into this process of cross cultural adaptation, issues arising in the development of Diamond Sangha Zen Buddhist groups, one of the largest Zen lineages in the West in Australia, are contextualised within the broader framework of the adaptations of Buddhist teachings and practices in other Westernised countries The book also examines the methodological approaches currently used for studying this process and suggests a synthesis of the approaches used for studying convert and ethnic Buddhist groups Guide to Fine and Rare Australasian Books Brian Richard Howes,1986 Supplementary Catalogue of the Public Library of New South Wales, Sydney, Reference Department Public Library of New South Wales.
