The outsourcing challenge Jan Drahokoupil, 2015-07-01 Production networks in many sectors have become increasingly fragmented Cutting labour costs by lowering pay increasing work intensity and or shifting flexibility costs to workers are just some of the motivations for outsourcing But it can also be used to circumvent employee representation and collective bargaining systems within companies and labour market regulations in general Though such intentions may not drive the bulk of outsourcing decisions any change in company boundaries is likely to impact employment working conditions and industrial relations in the value chain This book focuses on the dynamics of outsourcing in Europe from the perspective of employees In particular it considers one insufficiently studied aspect the impact of outsourcing on working conditions and employment relations in companies The book also collects lessons learned from the efforts of employees and trade unions to shape outsourcing decisions processes and their impact on employment and working conditions

Laura Vanderkam,2017-01-03 Everyone has an opinion anecdote or horror story about women and work Now the acclaimed author of What the Most Successful People Do Before Breakfast shows how real working women with families are actually making the most of their time Having it all has become the subject of countless books articles debates and social media commentary with passions running high in all directions Many now believe this to be gospel truth Any woman who wants to advance in a challenging career has to make huge sacrifices She s unlikely to have a happy marriage quality time with her kids assuming she can have kids at all a social life hobbies or even a decent night s sleep But what if balancing work and family is actually not as hard as it s made out to be What if all those tragic anecdotes ignore the women who quietly but consistently do just fine with the juggle Instead of relying on scattered stories time management expert Laura Vanderkam set out to add hard data to the debate She collected hour by hour time logs from 1 001 days in the lives of women who make at least 100 000 a year And she found some surprising patterns in how these women spend the 168 hours that every one of us has each week Overall these women worked less and slept more than they assumed they did before they started tracking their time They went jogging or to the gym played with their children scheduled date nights with their significant others and had lunches with friends They made time for the things that gave them pleasure and meaning fitting the pieces together like tiles in a mosaic without adhering to overly rigid schedules that would eliminate flexibility and spontaneity Vanderkam shares specific strategies that her subjects use to make time for the things that really matter to them For instance they Work split shifts such as seven hours at work four off then another two at night from home This allows them to see their kids without falling behind professionally Get creative about what counts as quality family time Breakfasts together and morning story time count as much as daily family dinners and they re often easier to manage Take it easy on the housework You can free up a lot of time by embracing the philosophy of good enough and getting help from other members of your household or a cleaning service Guard their leisure time Full weekend getaways may be rare but many satisfying hobbies can be done in small bursts of time An hour of crafting feels better than an hour of reality TV With examples from hundreds of real women Vanderkam proves that you don t have to give up on the things you really want I Know How She Does It will inspire you to build a life that works one hour at a time

time they lower their total supply chain costs as faster deliveries lead to fewer returns Reduction of returns means higher sales and lower transportation costs for returns The result is higher profits while creating more value for the customer Transportation is moving from a cost center towards a profit center The traditional logistics service providers are perceived to not innovate fast enough Top management must understand the transportation management basics and use it in their strategic decision making They should be involved in discussions on how to organize the transport management function in the best way and how to use it as a service differentiator Transportation is more than the efficient movement of supplies sub assemblies and final products In addition it is more than the key performance indicators on the business balanced scorecard Transportation management professionals fail to catch top management s attention due to the use of technical language It is more difficult to understand transportation key performance indicators such as loading degree net and gross pick up and delivery reliability It is easier to get top management attention when talking about lost sales due to stock outs lost tenders due to long delivery times high inventory holding and scrap costs
