Abstract—This paper presents a new approach to the problem of detecting and localizing faults in a system of interconnected components. The approach is based on the use of a fault detection and isolation (FDI) algorithm that uses a set of residual signals to detect and isolate faults. The FDI algorithm is designed to be robust to noise and to be able to detect and isolate faults in a wide range of systems. The results of simulations show that the FDI algorithm is able to detect and isolate faults in a system of interconnected components.
