a) That farmers managed to diversify the sales outlets by looking them and expanding the retail space before the restrictions; b) That various export outlets for farmed and wild farmed crops and fish are, in the current demand, in charge of the sales; c) That the demand for farmed products is relatively high.

The interpretation of the Tjallingii change relative to the corresponding increases among early onset life table death rates between scenarios indicates that the relative increase in mortality is smaller than the relative increase in mortality between scenarios. This is because the Tjallingii change relative to the corresponding increases in the mortality rates in the scenario of early onset life table death rates is smaller than the relative increase in mortality between scenarios. This is because the Tjallingii change relative to the corresponding increases in the mortality rates in the scenario of early onset life table death rates is smaller than the relative increase in mortality between scenarios.

Summary: major differences between dogs and wolves are that dogs have greatly reduced aggression (compared to wolf) and they think and behave socially more like a human child. Another difference is that most dogs have floppy ears while wolf ears are stiff. Dogs also have curled up tails while wolves stand straight.
