Embracing Diversity in the Learning Sciences Yasmin B. Kafai, 2012-10-12 More than a decade has passed since the First International Conference of the Learning Sciences ICLS was held at Northwestern University in 1991 The conference has now become an established place for researchers to gather The 2004 meeting is the first under the official sponsorship of the International Society of the Learning Sciences ISLS The theme of this conference is Embracing Diversity in the Learning Sciences As a field the learning sciences have always drawn from a diverse set of disciplines to study learning in an array of settings Psychology cognitive science anthropology and artificial intelligence have all contributed to the development of methodologies to study learning in schools museums and organizations As the field grows however it increasingly recognizes the challenges to studying and changing learning environments across levels in complex social systems This demands attention to new kinds of diversity in who what and how we study and to the issues raised to develop coherent accounts of how learning occurs Ranging from schools to families and across all levels of formal schooling from pre school through higher education this ideology can be supported in a multitude of social contexts The papers in these conference proceedings respond to the call The Post-Soviet Handbook M. conceptually and empirically It makes a strong case for social protection interventions that address the short term amelioration and long term structural needs of children and shows that programming in this sector for children is both feasible and achievable Policy makers and practitioners in this sector will have in this book the theoretical and empirical evidence necessary to advance social protection for Africa s children in the decades to come Furthermore this book should be an essential resource to postgraduates and students focussing on development economics in Africa      Proceedings of the General Board of the Church of the Nazarene and Its Departments Church of the Nazarene. Chattanooga, 1865-1900 Tim Ezzell, 2013-12-01 After the Civil War the city of Chattanooga Tennessee forged a different path than most southern urban centers Long a portal to the Deep South Chattanooga was largely rebuilt by northern men using northern capital and imbued with northern industrial values As such the city served as a cultural and economic nexus between North and South and its northern elite stood out distinctively from the rest of the region's booster class In Chattanooga 1865-1900 Tim Ezzell explores Chattanooga's political and economic development from the close of the Civil War through the end of the nineteenth century revealing how this unique business class adapted prospered and governed in the postwar South After reviewing Chattanooga's wartime experience Ezzell chronicles political and economic developments in the city over the next two generations White Republicans who dominated municipal government thanks to the support of Chattanooga's large African American population clashed repeatedly with Democrats who worked to redeem the city from Republican rule and restore responsible efficient government Ezzell shows that despite the efforts by white Democrats to undermine black influence black Chattanoogans continued to wield considerable political leverage into the 1890s On the economic front an extensive influx of northern entrepreneurs and northern capital into postwar Chattanooga led to dynamic if unstable growth Ezzell details the city's efforts to compete with Birmingham as the center of southern iron and steel production At times this vision was within reach but these hopes faded by the 1890s and Chattanooga grew into something altogether different not northern not southern but something peculiar set down in Dixie Although Chattanooga never reached its Yankee boosters ideal of a northern industrial city at home in the southern hills Ezzell demonstrates that it forged a legacy of resilience and resourcefulness that continues to serve the community to the present day Music Clubs Magazine ,1939
