College Boy Martin De Coursey Haynes,1990 Distant Readings Matt Erlin,Lynne Tatlock,2014 Explores the concept of distant reading and its application to the analysis of nineteenth century German literature and culture drawing on a range of approaches from the emerging digital humanities field In nineteenth century Germany breakthroughs in printing technology and an increasingly literate populace led to an unprecedented print production boom that has long presented scholars with a challenge how to read it all This anthology seeks new answers to the scholarly quandary of the abundance of text Responding to Franco Moretti s call for distant reading and modeling a range of innovative approaches to literary historical analysis informed by the burgeoning field of digital humanities it asks what happens when we shift our focus from the one to the many from the work to the network The thirteen essays in this volume explore the evolving concept of distant reading and its application to the analysis of German literature and culture in the long nineteenth century The contributors consider how new digital technologies enable both the testing of hypotheses and the discovery of patterns and trends as well as how distant and traditional close reading can complement each another in hybrid models of analysis that maintain careful attention to detail but also make calculation enumeration and empirical description critical elements of interpretation
