

RECOMMENDED CHECKSHEET

IS INFORMATION ABOUT THE ACCOUNTANT'S COMPETENCE, EXPERIENCE, AND OTHER RELEVANT INFORMATION AVAILABLE?

Information and Experience

Accountant's competence is a relatively straightforward matter to determine. The experience was requested in the questionnaire and some information is obtained, and can be confirmed by telephone or direct personal contact with the accountant. Some information is to be added from the answer to the question about the years spent in the profession. Experience and competence are subjective concepts that cannot be measured, so information cannot be provided. For this reason, the questionnaire, however, provides information on the accountant's qualifications, the number of years spent in the profession, and possibly also some information on past clients and on previous positions that have an account with respect to the years spent in the profession. The client must judge and the accountant himself the general effect. The questionnaire contains information on the accountant's experience and competence.

Accountant's information about the client generally has the form of a list of proposed financial statements, possibly accompanied by a report on the general budget and on possible or the cost of the client's account, and some general information on the accountant's qualifications and experience, and on the general budget. Information on the accountant's qualifications is not included in the questionnaire, but some general information about the years spent in the profession and the general budget, accompanied by proposed financial statements, is included.

Accountant's experience and competence is generally very important information, and some is provided in the questionnaire. It is not clear that the questionnaire is used to obtain the necessary information from the general budget. Therefore, some information on the general budget is included in the questionnaire, and the form of the questionnaire is not suggested. However, the questionnaire is not used to obtain the necessary information and some general budget information is included in the questionnaire. The questionnaire is not used to obtain the necessary information and some general budget information is included in the questionnaire.
